2 Employees quit

Council probes residency rule

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer

The residency requirement for Romulus city employees was scheduled for action by City Council at its regular meeting last night.

But while results of any action came after press deadline, there have already been repercussions in the form of resignations.

Two employees in the grants department, Eugene Yagley and Aaron Jones, who both live outside the city, turned in their resignations last week and have left city hall.

Yagley defied City Council's letter to appear before it and explain why he hadn't moved into the city as required by the ordinance. However, he did send a letter to Council and say he felt it was an administrative decision, not a legislative one.

Jones, on the other hand, declined to make a statement when Yagley did but decided to leave also.

Councilman Beverly McAnally refused to sit in on Council's private meetings with these seven or eight city employees who still live outside the city. She walked out, saying she didn't think the meetings should be private but should be aired publicly.

Her motion at the April 11 council meeting to "enforce the residency requirement" passed 6-0, with Junior Block absent. Councilman Jimmie Raspberry wanted to add an amendment to Mrs. McAnally's motion that would have included the charter language and excused some for "lack of suitable housing and hardship."

Mrs. McAnally voted against the amendment, as it passed 5-1.

The discussion led to a debate, of sorts, between Mrs. McAnally and Raspberry. Looking at McAnally, Raspberry said, "Didn't you make the motion to hear the employees? Since the employees came on their own time and offered information, don't we owe them something?"

Mrs. McAnally countered, "I think we need to uphold the ordinances. I do not want to work a hardship on anyone. It's unfortunate that employees outside the city were hired with the understanding that City Council wouldn't enforce the ordinances."

"Three mayors didn't enforce the ordinance," Raspberry responded. "With all due respect, you were Chairman of the Council two years (1973-75). Didn't you know employees worked in the city who lived outside the city?"

"No," answered Mrs. McAnally. "Weren't the records of the personnel office open to you?" Raspberry asked.

Councilman Ray Cantrell said, "We held a hearing. I think the least we can do is grant them the time specified in the ordinance." The ordinance gives one year's time for an employee to move into the city.

It was then that the council voted 6-0 to enforce the residency requirement and set last night for action on the issue.

Oakley to be Manistee's mayor

Michigan Week set May 20

Mayor William M. Oakley of Romulus will trade places with Mayor Vickers C. Hansen of Manistee as part of Michigan Week's Exchange Day of top elected city officials.

The annual Mayor's Exchange Day, organized by the Greater Michigan Foundation, is set for May 22. Five others from Romulus will accompany Oakley and his wife, Mary, to visit the city that sits on the edge of Lake Michigan on the western side of the state.

Tentatively scheduled to accompany the mayor and his wife are Councilmen Jimmie C. Raspberry, Raymond Cantrell and Junior Block and their wives and Councilman Gerry Canejo.

Welcoming Hansen in a ceremony at City Hall parking lot will be Mayor Pro-Tem Mary Ann Banks, who will be standing in during Oakley's absence.

Hansen, 40, is a native of Manistee and is the son of Dr. Ernest C. Hansen, long-time Manistee physician, who recently retired from active medical service.

Area residents upset

County probes runaway home in city limits

Some residents in Romulus are upset over rumors that a home for runaway teen agers may be placed at 7174 S. Wayne Road, just south of Ecorse Road, in the city.

Especially concerned is Mr. and Mrs. Lee Aggison, 7186 S. Wayne Road, who live right next door to the possible site.

"We've heard all kinds of rumors and we've had a difficult time finding out just what is happening," said Sally Aggison, 29, who explained they just purchased the property last September.

"We invested quite a large amount of money into making this our home and want to live here in peace and quiet. I don't believe a house for runaway boys and girl teenagers next door would be good for my three children, ages 11, seven and three," she said.

Mrs. Aggison, who is a clerk at the Romulus Post Office on Shook Road, is worried about the safety factor of her family and also the value of her property being affected if the home next door houses runaway teen agers.

"All the neighbors I've contacted have agreed to sign any petition necessary to keep it from going in," she said. She added that she would like to be contacted at 729-3276 by those who feel as she does and would like to help her.

Meanwhile, officials for Out-Wayne County Youth Services Coalition, Inc., feel there is nothing to be alarmed about.

"First of all, the house on Wayne Road in Romulus is not one of the top priority locations we're seeking," said Barbara Bergman, community outreach coordinator.

"Also, these are not delinquents and they are not pre-delinquents. Most of the teen agers we deal with are victims of some form of neglect or abuse."

Mrs. Bergman said further that "it is not a home, but a short term shelter for young people in crisis who are not presently able to return home."

She said that boys and girls crying for help are not delinquents - they are kids in need.

"I'd encourage anyone concerned about our program to give St. Norbert's in Inkster a call and see how our Counterpoint program is working. We feel this is a safe alternative to the hazards of street living for kids who are not able to stay at home."

She urged anyone with questions about the program to give her a call at 427-6670.

Hospitality Day sets agenda

The City of Romulus and We The People, a non-partisan civic group, are co-sponsoring Hospitality Day during Michigan Week in May.

The event will be held Friday, May 26, and We The People is contacting every business and organization in Romulus to participate in the celebration.

Planned for the day will be booths, exhibits, raffles and many forms of entertainment, according to Midge Prybyla and Grace Boc, co-chairpersons of the celebration.

Letters have been sent out to all groups and organizations and free booth space is available at the location of Hospitality Day celebration - Progressive Hall and adjoining Kennedy Park - Ozga Road and Huron River Drive in Romulus.

For free booth space, call Barbara Hoth at 941-4269. Mrs. Prybyla (941-2356) and Mrs. Boc (941-3891) may be called for more information about Hospitality Day.

"We have booths from clubs and organizations, displays from businesses, food booths, a beer booth, wine and cheese booth, and various forms of entertainment," said Mrs. Prybyla.

Included also will be an Art Fair. Clubs and organizations may have free booth space for their fund-raising activities.

Everyone is encouraged to participate and Hospitality Day will last from 4 p.m. until 7, according to the information release.

We The People is also having a raffle to help cover expenses. The prizes donated include: 1ST PRIZE - Round trip for two to Chicago, donated by Sky-Stream Airlines 2ND, 3RD and 4TH PRIZES are get-away weekends for two at the Hilton, Holiday Inn and Ramada Inn in Romulus. Included is two nights lodging, dinner and a bottle of champagne.

5TH PRIZE is a weekend at the Airport Host International Hotel for two. Includes one night's lodging, dinner and cocktails, plus champagne and roses.

6TH PRIZE is dinner for two, plus a bottle of wine at the Sheraton. Tickets for the raffle can be obtained for $1 donation from any member of We The People.

Candidates' Night Thursday

We The People, a non-partisan civic group, and The Romulus Roman, will again team up to present a "Meet the Candidates Night" on Thursday, April 27, at Romulus City Hall.

The opportunity for local residents to meet the 13 candidates running for the School Board will begin at 7:30 p.m. and be held in the City Council Chambers.

Last September a similar Meet the Candidates Night was held at Romulus High School when 23 candidates for municipal office had an opportunity to give their views. Many called it the most successful such event in the city's history.

Dennis Fassett, managing editor of Associated Newspapers six weekly papers, will be moderator for the evening. Candidates will have the opportunity to introduce themselves and then will be asked questions by Fassett from a prepared list. Then those in the audience will have an opportunity to ask questions.

Fassett has moderated "Meet the Candidates" nights in several communities of Associated Newspapers' circulation area and they have been hailed by all involved as very helpful to the community.

Neither Campbell or the other three interim appointments are running for the school board in the June 12 election.

"We The People feels the voters must acquaint themselves with the candidates and evaluate him or her before casting their votes to fill this very important position," said Richard Campbell, acting chairman of We The People.

"I certainly hope the citizens realize how important it is to select the most qualified people to rebuild the school board," continued Campbell, who was one of four appointees named by Gov. William Milliken to replace four school board trustees recalled in the March 4 recall election.

Wick School plans fair

The Wick School PTA will sponsor a fair from noon until 4 p.m. Saturday, April 29, at the school, 36900 Wick Rd., Romulus.

Tickets are 15 cents each or seven for $1 to the event which is co-chaired by Mrs. Oneita Davis and Mrs. Irene Jernigan.

There will be a cake walk, raffle, refreshments, food, bake sale, games, balloons and special events. The fair committee includes Chris Harris, Karen McFall, Lori Goode, Betsy Butler, Maria Ferdon, Kathleen Bunyak and Carolyn Martin.

The public is invited. Call 941-0272 for information.

White Cane Week starts

Romulus Lions Club members will be out in force on main street corners this weekend collecting in the annual White Cane Drive to help blind and other handicapped people.

During tornadoes

Evidence may alter idea about best shelter

An Eastern Michigan University climatologist has unearthed some new evidence about southeastern Michigan tornadoes — evidence which may change the best places of shelter in homes and public buildings.

According to George Howe, most tornadoes which touch down in southeastern Michigan move from the west or northwest toward the east or southeast.

"This could be an important consideration in knowing where the safest part of a building is," he said.

Howe noted that the vast majority of the nation's tornadoes — about 85 percent — come out of the southwest; thus meteorologists have advised people in the path of a twister to seek shelter in that corner of their basement or other dwelling. But recent findings warn that the places traditionally deemed the safest may, in fact, be the most dangerous places to be should a tornado hit.

"Most recent studies and evidence indicate that the part of the building opposite the direction the tornado is coming is the safest," Howe said. "This is based partly on the fact that we know the majority of damage is done by winds rather than the pressure differential; the strongest winds would be on the 'right-hand side' of the tornado track."

Howe reported that 59 percent of the tornadoes which touched down in southeastern Michigan between 1951 and 1975 came out of the West or northwest. This means that the safest place for most Michigan residents living in this area is the east side of the basement or lowest floor. Elsewhere in the lower peninsula, the best shelter is the northeast corner or north wall of the basement, since tornadoes in the rest of the state usually come out of the southwest.

Nationally, the peak months for tornadoes are April and May, when weather conditions are the most unstable. Although most of Michigan shares similar tornado statistics, southeastern Michigan is a different animal.

"The eastward and southeastward moving tornadoes occur most frequently in June and July," Howe said, "so the greatest risk in southeastern Michigan is during that two-month period."

Once the thunderous sound of an approaching twister is heard, Howe advises people to "dive for the safest place in the house" and not to spend valuable moments opening windows, which was thought to be an important safety measure. Windows are usually the weakest part of the structure, anyway, he said.

Recent studies of schools, homes and other buildings destroyed by tornadoes have shown that the most dangerous locations are the windward walls — the walls which receive the heaviest beating from the winds, which can reach 300 miles an hour. The glass, brick and block which make up the windward walls of dwellings will be blown into the interior of the building, while less damage will be done to the walls on the leeward side.

People also should avoid all north-south corridors or halls, since tornadoes can send debris flying down them like deadly missiles.

"For most of Michigan 'the first thing to do would be to designate the safest areas in homes and public buildings so that people could move quickly to them should a tornado appear on the horizon. It is also important to be alert, if a watch is issued in one's area.'"

Coalition for 21 reaches first goal of petition drive

"Today we have reached an intermediate step on our way to qualifying our initiative petition amendment to the Michigan Constitution, which would raise the legal drinking age to 21, by securing 165,700 signatures as of April 14," said Allen B. Rice II, Executive Director of the Michigan Council on Alcohol Problems (MICAP) and co-chairman of the Coalition for 21 which kicked off its petition drive in September 1977.

Some 265,700 certified signatures are required to qualify a petition for a constitutional amendment, and the Coalition for 21 circulators will need at least 50,000 to 100,000 additional signatures to guarantee qualification on the ballot.

"Through our churches and school groups, including the PTAs, school board members, school counselors and secondary school principals, and the public response gained through radio and TV talk shows, we have distributed over a quarter of a million petitions across the state — enough to bring in more than 2 million signatures," reported Paul Bailey, associate MICAP director and state-side coordinator for the Coalition for 21. "In my personal appearances in more than 90 radio and TV stations all across the state, I can say that there is almost universal enthusiasm for the objective of re-establishing the legal drinking age at 21," said Bailey, who also is charged with contacts with the 83 county coordinators who are hard at work extending the opportunity for Michigan citizens to express their desire to have this issue on the ballot.

"Our first deadline in this petition drive is May 1st," said Rice, "but we have a fall back date of June 1st for follow-up and then we have a date of July 1st for a crisis deadline, if it is needed, and the absolute final deadline is July 10. Circulators should send in petitions as completed," he requested.

Persons wishing further information or petitions should write Coalition for 21, P.O. Box 10212, Lansing 48901, or call 517-484-0016.

Howe, one of the state's foremost tornado authorities, sees siren warning systems as a futile attempt at protecting people from twisters. Sirens are ineffective, because they usually cannot warn people in time and often cannot reach enough people in the tornado's path, he said.

"The possibility of a damaging tornado in any year or any month is rather small for any point or small area," he explained, "and the time available is so short once a tornado is sighted. It's better for people to note that they are in a tornado

Contractor bound over on felony charge

By MAUREEN CAMPS
ANP Staff Writer

Contractor Vincent Schieda, charged with obtaining money by false pretenses from the City of Westland, has been bound over for trial in Wayne County Circuit Court on the felony charge. The decision to send him to Circuit Court came from 18th District Court Judge Thomas G. Smith Monday after a four-hour preliminary examination.

A preliminary exam is held to establish two criteria. First, the prosecution must demonstrate that a crime has been committed, and second, must show probable cause, to the satisfaction of the judge, that the defendant may have committed it.

Richard Whitney, who prosecuted the case for the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office, called nine witnesses, most of them inspectors who said they witnessed various aspects of the work done by the contracting firm owned by Schieda. The city alleges that Schieda billed the city for contracting work not actually performed by his firm, Standard General Contractors of Romulus.

His firm was to lower underground sewer lead lines along Palmer Road so that the Wayne County Drain Commission could complete its work on a different project having to do with drain installation and paving.

The prosecutor produced witnesses, city inspectors and inspectors from the city's consulting engineering firm, who testified that Schieda did lower nine of the sewer leads in the area along Palmer Road. However, the engineer in charge of supervision, Andre Hindu from the consulting firm of McDonnell-Proudford and Associates, testified that he told Schieda not to lower sewer leads on vacant lots.

Subsequently, the city was allegedly billed for the lowering of sewer leads on those lots, and for an address that turned out to be non-existent.

Police and engineering investigators testified that at least two vacant lots were later dug up, and no sewer leads found.

Police Insp. Fred Dansby testified that Schieda told him that he (Schieda) had personally dug or at least worked on all of the trenches, including the ones that allegedly weren't done.

Dansby said that Schieda explained the alleged billing irregularities to be the result of confusion on the site.

Indeed, it was confusion, and lack of communication on the part of the city, its engineers and consulting engineers, that Schieda's attorney attempted to demonstrate during the examination.

Defense attorney Thomas Wing attempted to establish that there was no criminal intent on the part of his client, that inspection reports by the consulting engineers were not available to his client to aid in his billing and that confusion resulted from the "messed up operation out there 'on the rush job.'"

While the city usually has engineering reports from its inspectors to verify that work was performed before any bill is approved for payment, in this case engineering reports apparently were not used before the Department of Public Service approved payment.

City engineering division employee Ernest Keast said he personally saw leads installed on four lots, then took the word of Schieda that the remainder were done. He said he subsequently approved payment, without seeing actual field reports for verification, since Schieda had worked for the city before, and he (Keast) had no reason to doubt that the work was done.

However, after the first four leads were lowered, as verified by Keast's personal inspection, the remainder of the work was inspected by McDonnell-Proudford engineers. But the reports on that work were never requested by nor sent to the city until this investigation began, it was revealed at the exam.

Hindu testified that the reports were not sent routinely to the city in this case because the firm actually was doing the inspection work for the county, not for the city, on this joint city-county paving and drainage project.

Communication problems or not, the judge determined that he believed there was enough evidence to justify binding Schieda over to Circuit Court for trial.

Schieda will be arraigned on information at 8:30 a.m. May 19 in the out-county division of Circuit Court at Eloise.

Smith had, at the beginning of the examination, told Schieda and his attorney that he was denying the defense motion that he (Smith) disqualify himself from the case because of his association with the City of Westland. He told the defense attorney that the decision could be appealed to the other 18th District Court judge and a hearing on the matter demanded, but although Wing said he "further objected," he made no further motion for a hearing.

'Fantastic future'

Detroit Diesel: City and industry 'team up'

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer

Because of the fantastic future predicted for the diesel engine, much attention was focused on Detroit Diesel Allison's recent announcement a new 8.2 litre diesel engine for medium-duty vehicles.

In fact, Detroit Diesel's presence in Romulus and its contribution to the community is an illustration of how a city and a corporation can work together for the good of all concerned.

Bob Brueck, a 35-year veteran with the company and one who is concerned with younger people entering the job market, traced Detroit Diesel's move to Romulus and subsequent growth there. Brueck is manager of industry-government relations for the local plant.

He recalled that Argonaut Realty Division of General Motors purchased the old Stinson Aircraft property from Consolidated Vultee back in 1949.

Detroit Diesel used the building to design, develop and manufacture small generator set (15 kw) to be used in tanks and other military installations as independent, auxiliary power. With termination of the Korean conflict in 1953, these operations slowly closed down.

At the same time, however, the diesel engine business was expanding and outgrowing the manufacturing space in Detroit Diesel's Redford headquarters facilities.

As a result, the large aircraft assembly bays became parts warehouse space, and the Stinson offices became headquarters for

'We knew that skilled labor was available...'

Detroit Diesel Allison's Worldwide Parts Distribution Center.

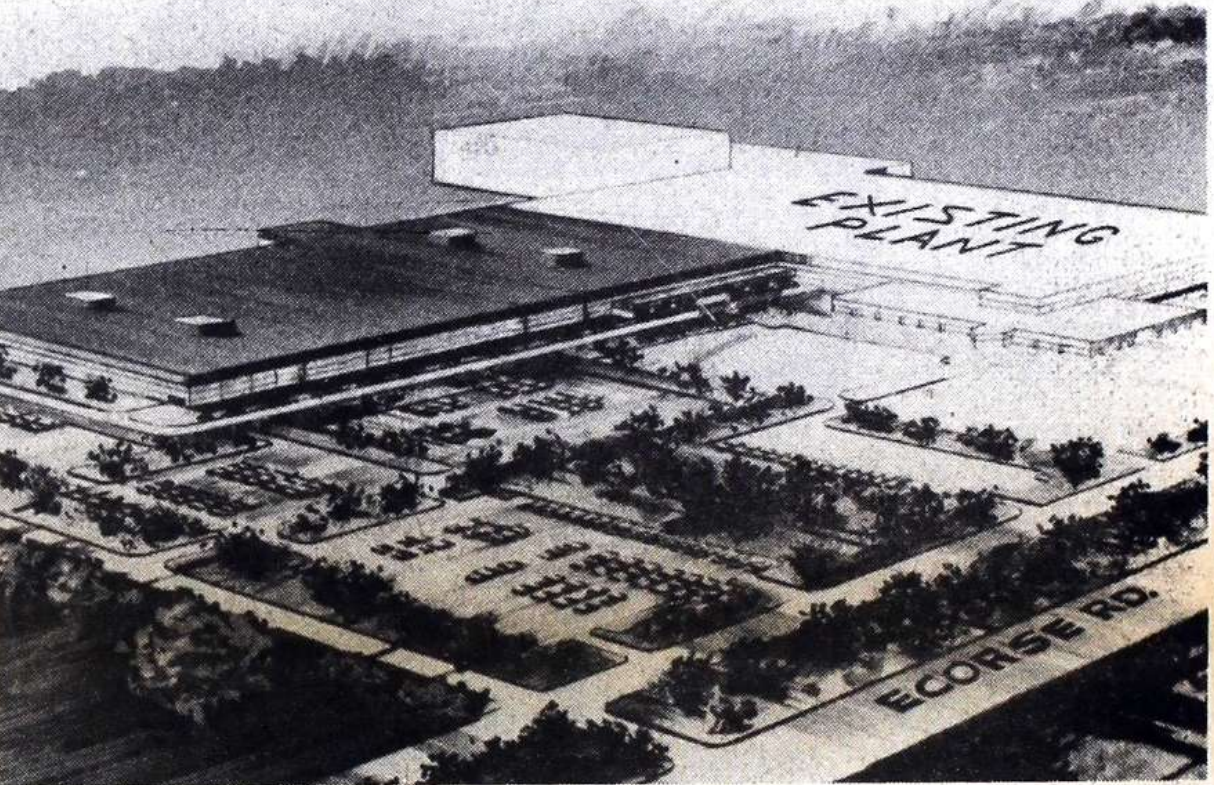

"When we first walked through all those offices and saw the huge amount of room in all those buildings, we never thought we'd ever need all the space," Brueck laughed as he recalled his first stroll through the facility.

"We not only used all that was there, but we have recently undergone four huge expansion programs," he added.

Brueck recalled that as the warehouse activity grew, many minor revisions and renovations were made, plus a few sizeable additions until by 1975 it was a very modern, efficient warehouse operation of 650,000 square feet employing 500 people.

The diesel engine business continued to grow, and by 1974, DDA was again running out of manufacturing space in Redford. Many alternatives were considered in a search for manufacturing high-volume parts.

Indianapolis was a prime place to look because DDA had a multi-plant complex with 12,000 employees there with room to expand. Other out-of-state sites were also considered, including Ohio and Iowa, and attractive offers, including generous tax-break incentives came from the "sun belt" states.

And Michigan in 1974 was not competitive for industrial growth. Then the Michigan Legislature — at the urging of Gov. William Milliken, business and industry leaders, and the Michigan Chamber of Commerce — passed a most important piece of legislation as far as industrial growth was concerned. Public Act 198, "Plant Rehabilitation and Industrial Development Districts Law," was passed, permitting the local taxing unit to exempt rehabilitation projects and new industrial development from one-half the normal property tax for 12 years. This caused DDA to take a second look at the unused manufacturing property in Romulus, Brueck explained.

Detroit Diesel officials felt the area was ideal because of its closeness to two major interstate highways, I-94, and I-275, the C&O Railroad and Metropolitan Airport, plus the fact the location was only 25 minutes from DDA's headquarters.

"We knew that skilled labor was available, and although in Michigan, unemployment and workman's compensation costs to employees are among the highest in the country, we felt that any tax savings could help offset this," Brueck pointed out.

Deeming it most economically advantageous to make high volume parts close to assembly operations and the parts distribution headquarters, Detroit Diesel began its first of four major expansions that has made it among the most prominent industrial giants in all of Wayne County and the state of Michigan.

Brueck highly praised Romulus administration officials and city council members for their outstanding cooperation in helping Detroit Diesel accomplish its growth and provide more tax base and job opportunities for Romulus residents.

DDA paid taxes amounting to $287,775 in 1975 and by the time all four expansions are completed in 1982, it is estimated the company will be paying $2,700,000 in taxes annually to Romulus.

Taxes paid to Romulus by Detroit Diesel amounted to $739,812 in 1976 and $1,140,000 in 1977.

Reflecting on his desire to help youngsters find employment, Brueck pointed out that Detroit Diesel provided 114 part-time jobs last summer, most of which were filled by local youngsters just out of high school or going to college.

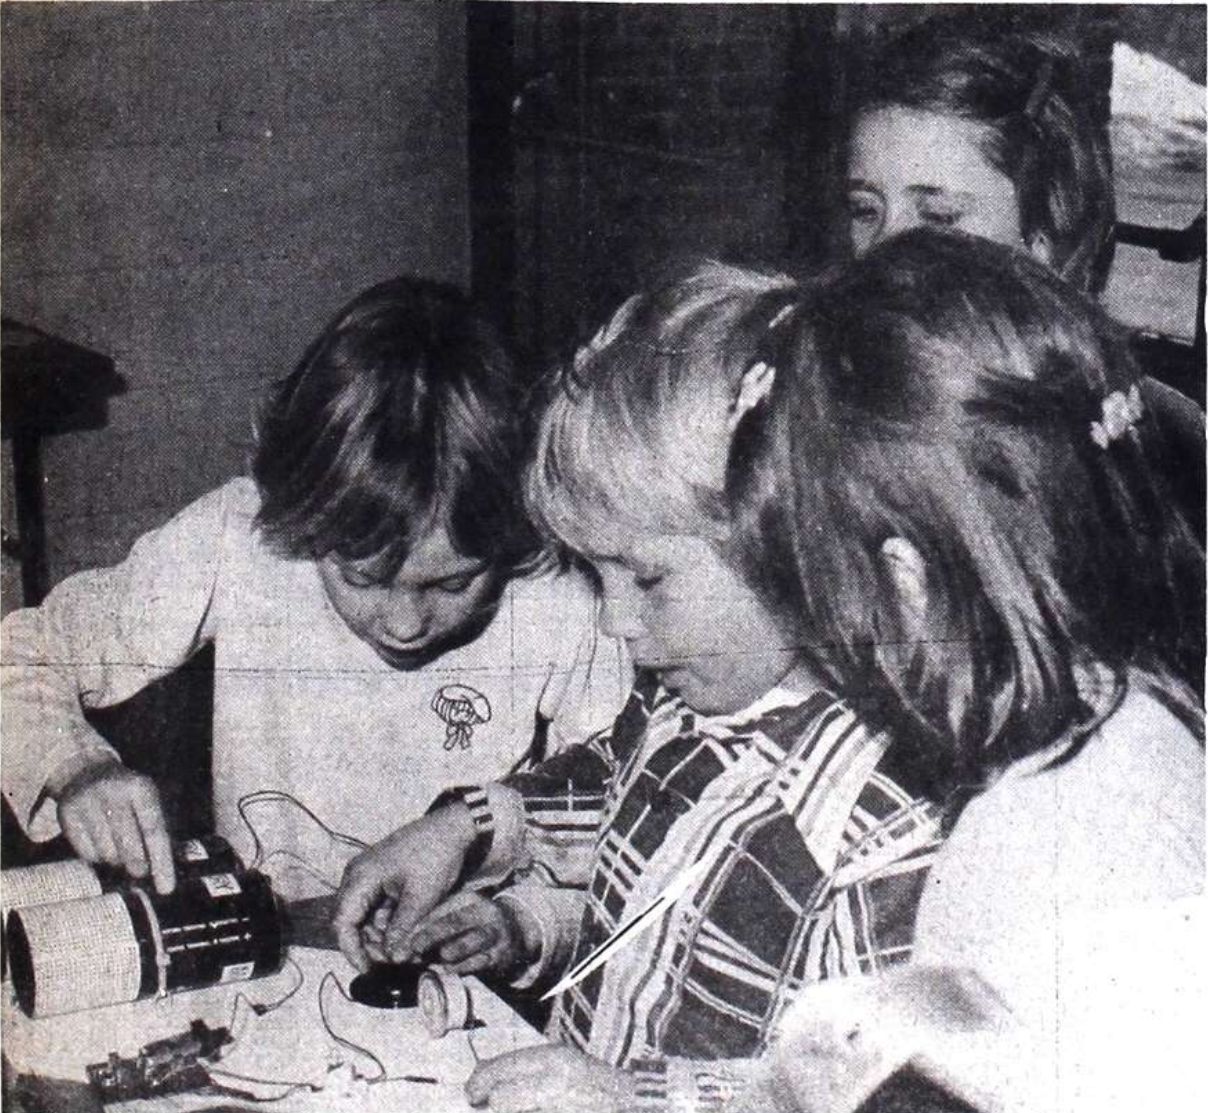

Of the 114, 18 Romulus residents have been retained as permanent employees.

"By the end of 1979, if all goes as planned, our total employment should be about 2,500, increasing to 2,990 by 1981 and hitting 3,400 by 1983," Brueck said in assessing the future.

"I sincerely believe there will be more expansion unless we run into some severe economic setbacks. Of course, you realize that unpredictable economic and political factors can change the picture drastically.

"On the other hand, we may enjoy prosperity and have even more opportunities than predicted.

"Following General Motors Chairman Thomas Murphy's lead, I would say that we are cautiously optimistic about our future in Romulus," Brueck concluded.

'You light up my life'

Four youngsters gather around to push a doorbell-type button so the light can go on in a demonstration of electricity using two batteries. The fun activity took place at a recent Science Fair display at Mt. Pleasant School, 39000 Superior, Romulus. The elementary school students were awarded ribbons on their various science exhibits at the fair. It was one of the most exciting and rewarding of learning experiences, according to the instructor.—ANP photo.

4-H youth will host large ethnic festival

A weekend event billed as "the largest Ethnic Festival in Western Wayne County" begins Friday at the Westland Multi-Purpose Arena, located on Wildwood between Ford and Warren roads.

Admission is free to the festival which is sponsored by the Wayne County 4-H Youth Program with the cooperation of the Westland Parks and Recreation Department.

Families may attend from 6 to 9:30 p.m. on Friday, noon till 9 p.m. on Saturday and noon till 5 p.m. on Sunday. All area residents are invited.

The first 100 youngsters under 12 arriving at the festival each day will receive a free gift from the festival committee.

Displays, crafts and baked goods representing more than 20 ethnic groups will be on exhibit. There will be continuous entertainment, music, fashion shows and ethnic performances.

Cultural and historical traditions will be highlighted by such performers as the Highland Piper Drum Band and Scottish Dancers, Hawaiian dancers, Grotto clowns and an African drill team. Music will range from Austrian, to American square dancing and disco dancing.

Another highlight of the weekend will be the announcement of the grand finalists in the Ethnic Heritage Poster Contest. Finalists will receive $25 savings bonds at a presentation Sunday afternoon.

The festival committee is chaired by Joyce Palmer of Romulus. New Detroit, Inc., is represented on the committee by Beverly Kindall, youth coalition coordinator.

According to committee members, the primary goal of the festival is to provide youth and their families with an opportunity to learn about their own ethnic background and about the culture and traditions of the other nationalities.

Also at the festival will be a 4-H information booth. Youth and interested adults can find out how they can become involved in 4-H. There are 4-H programs in over 130 project areas.

This Ethnic Festival will be an annual event each spring. Groups representing various ethnic and traditions are invited to participate in this annual event. Information and details about 4-H are available by calling 721-6576 or writing to Wayne County 4-H Youth Program, 3716 Newberry, P.O. Box 550, Wayne, MI 48184.

Kiwanis to sponsor 12-hour pancake meal

The annual Kiwanis Pancake Festival will be held from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday at the Progressive Hall, Ozga Road at Huron River Drive in Romulus.

Tickets are a $2 donation for adults, $1.75 for senior citizens and $1.25 for children.

Proceeds will go to sponsor a dental program for underprivileged children in Wayne County.

Information about tickets may be obtained by calling Bob Martin at 941-8810 or Ping Hay at 941-0055.

MSU offers great things during May

Michigan State University and the surrounding East Lansing area offer some great things to do in the month of May for all ages and interests, according to the Travel Bureau of the Michigan Department of Commerce. A few of the coming events you might want to note on your calendar are:

Baby Animal Day, held on May 6, a favorite annual event for children. Visitors will be able to tour the MSU barns and feed and pet ponies, lambs, chicks, calves and other baby animals from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Parking and shuttle service between barns will be provided.

Starting May 16 and running through June 1, (Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 6:30 p.m.), the Michigan State University Music Department will present free outdoor concerts featuring the various university bands and a wide variety of music. The concerts are held on the music building grounds and in surrounding gardens. For more information on specific programs contact the MSU Music Department. Abrams Planetarium's Sky

Theater will present two new programs — a unique sight and sound show, "Reflections", May 1-14, and a live show, "Celestial Summer", May 26-28 at 8 and 10 p.m., Fridays and Saturdays. "Reflections" is a science fiction story of the meeting of two alien civilizations in space. "Celestial Summer" is a presentation of what can be seen in the Michigan night sky in spring.

A special midnight album and slide show, "Musical Interlude", will be shown on May 19-21. These popular shows, combining music and dazzling visual effects provide an extraordinary experience and have been sell-outs in the past.

For those eager to return to the outdoors, Fenner Arboretum, located only a few miles west of the MSU campus, has an excellent system of nature trails to explore. A specialty area for viewing wildlife and flowers, Fenner consists of 120 acres of woods, fields and ponds. Picnic spots and areas for overnight camping under the stars are available.

The arboretum is open 7:30 a.m. through 6 p.m. daily. Guided nature walks are held Friday, Saturday and Sunday mornings. Naturalists are available to accompany visitors on walks at most times. Several field trips are being

Flower walk set

"Spring Wildflowers II" is the title of a family nature walk to be provided at the nature study area of Oakwoods Metropark on May 7 at 2 p.m.

Park naturalist Glen Dent will lead visitors through the woodlands in search of violets, trilliums, May-apple and buttercups.

This free program is for families and individuals only, but advanced registration is required. Vehicle entry permits are required.

planned in May along with an outdoor equipment show featuring demonstrations of backpacking,

TODAY'S Real Estate

by M. Phyllis Crabtree

If you are new to a community, your real estate professional can give you detailed information about the town, the neighborhood, schools, taxes, shopping plazas, transportation, houses of worship and community services. He can also give you complete information and photographs of the homes which are listed with him for sale. This enables you to eliminate many houses which are unsuited to your needs and budget — and you can do it while you are right in the office. Then you will be taken to the homes you wish to see. In most cases he will introduce you to the present owners and help answer any questions you might have. The time is now — now is the time that house hunting really begins. School will be over in a few short months, and summer is an ideal time for relocating. CENTURY 21 COMMUNITY REALTORS, 10675 Belleville Rd., Belleville has a grand variety of homes available. Avoid the many costly mistakes often made in home buying — rely on CENTURY 21 COMMUNITY REALTORS. Phone 697-2121. DID YOU KNOW? We can help both you and the sellers negotiate a contract which is satisfactory to both of you.

EMU raises room, board

A three percent increase in room and board rates in the Eastern Michigan University residence halls has been approved by the EMU Board of Regents.

The board also approved increases in family housing rents ranging from $10 to $15 per month. The new rates will be effective for the 1978-79 fiscal year.

A new option in the residence halls for 1967-79 will be triple occupancy. Students sharing a room with two other roommates will pay $1,483 per year for the 20-meal plan, $1,453 for the 15- and 13-meal plans, $1,423 for the 10-meal plan and $672 for a room with no meals.

Double rooms will cost $1,643 for the 20-meal plan, $1,613 for the 14- and 13-meal plans, $1,583 for the 10-meal plan and $831 for a room with no meals. Students who choose to live by themselves will pay $2,123 for the 20-meal plan, $2,093 for the 15- and 13-meal plans, $2,063 for the 10-meal plan and $1,316 for a single room with no meals.

Monthly rents for the Brown-Munson single student apartments increased $5 per month. Single or double apartments will rent for $130 to $155 per month, single or double apartments for $160 to $165 per month, double or triple apartments for $170 to $230 per month and three- to six-person apartments for $325 to $360 per month.

The rent for one-bedroom apartments in the university's family housing complexes was increased $10 per month. Two-bedroom apartments increased $15 per month. The rents

Frogs studied

A program on "Salamanders and Frogs" will be presented at the Nature Center of Kensington Metropark near Milford on May 6 at 9 a.m.

They can best be observed in the spring, where they congregate in ponds and lakes to begin their mating rituals. Their different markings help determine their species, but frogs can also be identified by their unique calls.

Through the use of taped calls and slides, park naturalist Steve Horn will show how to identify frogs and salamanders of this area. Weather permitting, there will be an outdoor observation walk.

This program is free for families and individuals only, but advanced registration is required.

For registration or information contact the nature center at Kensington Metropark at 685-1561 (Milford).

Shore work aired

A new film exploring the conflicting and competing uses of Michigan's 3,200 miles of coastline will be presented May 13 at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 56.

"Who's Minding the Shore?" is an overview of the Federal Coastal Zone Management Program. Michigan is one of 30 states participating in the program.

The CZM program is intended to bring some order to various states' methods of regulating and managing their shorelines. The show focuses specifically on the CZM program as it affects Michigan. It also discusses the history of the CZM (since 1972) and examines the widely varied uses that different people see for Michigan's shoreline. The State of Michigan is slated to receive $10 million through 1983 for implementation of this program. The Department of Natural Resources, which is the administering agency appointed by the Governor, is to pass 50 percent of that total to local units of government. It is at that level that much of the battle over coastal usage is taking place.

The film was funded through a grant from the Department of Commerce's Office of Coastal Zone Management.

Editorial opinions

Airport name change a serious effort

The proposed name change for Detroit Metropolitan Airport, as proposed by Romulus officials, would see that Romulus landmark renamed Romulus International Airport.

While the members of the county's Public Works Committee, have referred the proposal to its legal department for study, the general news media has met the proposal with grins. And, as a matter of fact, several purveyors of the local news, have decided that the city of Romulus is not really serious about the proposed name change.

We disagree.

If Romulus is not serious about the name change, they certainly have been convincing in their arguments in favor of such action.

We at Associated Newspapers have long been on the record in favor of the change from Detroit Metro, to Romulus International.

No only do we think it would be a good idea, it would also be good for Romulus.

For too long the citizens of that city have been forced to endure the noise, the pollution, and the inconvenience that the airport has created for nearby residents. And to frost the cake, the county owned facility is exempt from most of the normal taxes that a private project of the airport's magnitude would provide for the city's treasury.

We believe that the county should accept the proposed name change for what it was intended to be. A serious effort to provide the citizens who must live with the airport some small measure of recognition for their inconvenience is in order.

Romulus International Airport! A pleasant ring to it, don't you agree?

Red Wing support example to follow

Western Wayne County, hot-bed of ice hockey enthusiasts, has been watching the efforts of the Detroit Red Wings intently during the club's current struggles with the NHL's leading team, the Montreal Canadiens.

We feel that the area-wide support for the Red Wings is just a small indication of what people can do when they make their minds up to get involved.

Few events of the past 10 years have aroused so many of the residents of Wayne County.

It is truly sad that those same people who would travel the 20 plus miles to Olympia Stadium, stand in long lines, in many cases trading their self respect for two hockey tickets, fail so miserably when it comes to becoming involved in their own communities.

It is also sad that those same people will willingly spend up to $10 per ticket to watch their teams play, but will donate nothing to the many worthwhile projects ongoing in their own towns.

It is obvious to all what the difference is between a Red Wing playoff game and getting involved in the community. A hockey game is fun to watch, and the excitement surrounding the game has to be experienced to be appreciated, but getting involved in the community is not always fun or exciting. But, the long range rewards are much higher.

As idealists, we say that all of those people who have inconvenienced themselves to make the journey to support their hockey team, should be willing to expend an equal amount of effort in support of the community. But as realists, we know that will never be the case. But we do not understand why so few people care to become involved in helping to shape their community's future.

There never seems to be a shortage of people who would complain about the decisions made by their elected officials, but few of those complainers ever offer alternative plans.

We think that what the communities of Western Wayne County need to do is tap the virtually unlimited potential possessed by the residents of the community. But, before that will be possible, it will be necessary for the elected officials that serve the community to commit themselves to welcoming the involvement of the citizens.

For too long, too many politicians have considered their office a gift from above, rather than a gift from the people.

And too many politicians, after gaining office, find that the job is just too demanding of their time. But, rather than quit, they continue to hang on to the prestige while providing no real service to the people who have elected them.

It is apparent that not only corporations suffer from the effects of the 'Peter Principle,' local government does also.

But, this problem of unqualified elected officials has a simple solution.

An informed and involved citizenry could eliminate in just a few short years the majority of the problems that currently exist between the elected official and his constituency. We suggest that one step in the direction of getting more citizens involved in the democratic process would be through the creation of a 'Community Day.'

Today, we live in a transient society. Few people expect to live out their lives in the community that they may now find themselves in. It is time to make the effort toward attracting those citizens, and getting them involved.

And, one way to do that is to convince them that a specific community would be a good place for them to stay. We should concentrate on pointing out the differences between us rather than the sameness.

Each and every community is different. Each has its own identity. It is time to provide the residents with their own identity tied to the community.

We think a 'Community Day' would be a good beginning.

From Romulus City Hall

Postal reorganization a Romulus hope

It has been six months since we began our campaign to secure a new post office for the City of Romulus.

Since that time, approximately 2,000 residents have signed petitions, dozens of letters have been sent to our state and federal representatives and many personal letters have been received by my office, all describing the poor postal service we receive.

The response, to date, from the government, can best be described as negative.

After a lengthy letter to the Detroit postmaster explaining our problems and needs, the only response has been a short, cryptic note to the effect that nothing could be done.

Following that, a government appraiser visited Romulus with orders to arrange the sale of the federal property next to the new 34th District Court, which was purchased in 1975 for the purpose of building a new post office in Romulus.

The government has renegotiated a lease on the old building on Bibbins Street and our 40 carriers are still working out of the Taylor Post Office.

As the post office is organized today, our elected representatives are largely powerless to effect change on our behalf.

Even though Congressman William D. Ford is a member of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, it has been more than two years since the "temporary" move of our postal carriers to Taylor with still no sign of change as a result of his efforts.

In the meantime, poor delivery continues to plague Romulus residents. Cases of hardship caused by the poor and erratic service out of Taylor continue to be received.

Common examples include the late delivery of bills, forcing residents to pay penalty charges; letters returned undelivered, although addresses are accurate, letters going to all parts of the country although the destinations are a few miles across town and bulk city mailings taking up to two weeks to be delivered.

However, all is not lost. There is currently a move underway in the U.S. Congress to revamp the entire U.S. Postal Service.

A major reorganization of the Service was approved by the House of Representatives on April 6 by the lopsided vote of 384 - 11. This marks the first reorganization attempt since Congress established the semi-autonomous private corporation in 1970.

The bill, HR 7700, now before the Senate, is designed to make the Postal Service more efficient and to reinstate a measure of congressional and executive branch control over its operations.

The measure would provide for a congressional veto over rate increases and service cuts, making the system more

Solidarity at any cost?

By DENNIS FASSETT
Managing Editor

The invitation read: You are cordially invited to a Community Press open house to be held at the UAW Region 1-E headquarters, signed: Bard Young, director.

The invitation to join with the community press and ranking union officials for a general discussion of UAW press relations struck me as having considerable merit.

It had been some time since I had the opportunity of walking the halls that Walther Reuther built. Many years, during my adolescence in local politics, I had often joined my fellow precinct delegates at the Region 1-E facility on Telegraph in Taylor. The purpose of those get-togethers was to act out the well orchestrated scenario called democracy.

I had always left those meetings impressed with the reality of politics. It was, as it were, the most basic application of the one man-one vote principle. And, the one man always seemed to be the chairman of the 15th Democratic district.

But on this occasion, the subject was not to be politics, at least not primarily politics.

Upon entering the building I was greeted warmly by Region 1-E's public relations man, Paul Morris. Morris' function with the UAW, like PR men everywhere, was to keep the good deeds of the UAW well publicized through the communication media.

Following a round of handshaking introductions, I was joined by Bard Young. We engaged in an innocuous discussion of the current plight in which Wayne County Commissioners now found themselves—the impossible position of having run out of fat paying full-time county jobs that they could appoint one of their members to.

Following cocktails, stuffed mushrooms, and chicken livers, I was introduced to several local presidents, and their assistants.

Asking for our attention, Bard Young stood at the front of the room and thanked the media for coming to the open house. In his well delivered short speech, Young expressed the hope that the news media would allow the UAW to respond to any possible comments that the news people might be inclined to print, regarding the activities of his organization. He also expressed the hope that the UAW and the media could work more closely in the future.

Generally, I was impressed with the party. For anyone who may hold the image of a UAW boss as a thug or muscle man would have been disappointed. To a man, the UAW staff, and elected officers were articulate gentlemen, a far cry from the Ford Motor Company overpass days.

On the way out of the building, I was offered a press kit containing information relating to UAW activities, Region 1-E press contacts, and two issues of the union's house organ Solidarity.

For those of you who might not be familiar with the magazine, Solidarity is the UAW's (published every three weeks) vehicle for informing the union membership of important events and-or legislation which may affect them.

I found the magazine extremely interesting, especially the April 24th edition featuring on its cover the image of black Africa.

Thumbing through the pages of Solidarity, I was impressed with the general excellence of the material. Written and edited well, the stories ran from the union's strike settlements in other parts of the country to philosophical discussions of the future of white collar workers. But, an article on Page 19, titled Plant Closings: The Physical Toll, was of special interest to me.

It seems that the Federal government conducted a research program aimed at discovering the effect on workers of plant closings.

The article, without by-line, presented the findings of the Federal government, and concluded that plant closings take a heavy toll on those workers who have been affected by them.

This article, while interesting, would not normally have stuck out with such contrast had it not been for the layout on the back page of Solidarity.

That back cover contained a full page 'Editorial Opinion' stating that "A cash register that doesn't ring is the loudest sound that a boss will hear."

It went on to explain that UAW members should boycott a long list of companies that have resisted unions in some manner or other.

Interesting. Page 24 suggests boycotting companies who have not conformed to the union way of thinking, and Page 19 discusses the trauma of plant closings.

Possibly, the trauma to the individual is of less significance than the will of the union.

I couldn't help but get the impression that while a company must thoroughly understand its workers if it is to progress, the members of a union are provided almost no information regarding the problems that management faces in trying to keep all of the union membership employed.

But, it has been said that a little knowledge is a dangerous thing.

I wonder what the workers at Bear Archery Products think about the urged boycott? (Bear is on the list of companies to be boycotted.)

There is more than a LITTLE TROUBLE this FRIDAY, since the mangy old JUNK YARD DOG bit BINGO BERTHA on her LITTLE FOOT. (She was a BLUE RIDGE LADY). The BRAIN SURGEON was unable to save her. While the BUZZARD circled overhead, she was put into the hands of the UNDERTAKER. The VAMPIRE (who is a real HEAVY DRINKER) showed the undertaker what a "KWIK - HELPER" he could be.

SERGEANT - MCCLOUD, who is a real LEATHER NECK (with his bushy EYELASHES, and newly trimmed BLACKBEARD and MUSTACHE) will HOT ROD it to his WHITE HORSE (He's also a super HORSEMAN). He'll keep his "WATCHFUL EYES" open for the old flea bitten HOUND DOG. It's a real YPSI RUMBLE and the old PUP'S TAIL is in BIG TROUBLE with that SHOT GUN blasting behind him. The old SHAGGY DOG is probably wishing he was a streamline GREYHOUND so he could keep ahead of all that BUCKSHOT.

If that old BLUE DOG is smart, he will try to convince the LAWMAN, the BOUNTY HUNTER and any other LAND

TRACKER or GUN SLINGER, that the old MONGOOSE (who is sitting in a SHADY spot, watching the CATFISH on the BED ROCK, at the RIVER BEND) was the animal that did BIG BERTHA in.

There is a SHORT STOP made as the MORNING STAR appears. DIESEL WILLY will work on BELLEVILLE SAM's old HEAVY CHEVY that broke down, causing him to just about POP-A-TOP. Meanwhile, SAM'S WIFE, (who's a real YO-YO) pours UNCOLA and PEPSI LITE for Sam and MIGHTY MIKE, who just drove up in his LITTLE RED WAGON. (They'd rather get their refreshments from MOONSHINE MAN. His has no TINY BUBBLES). But they join the YAKKITY YAK in the kitchen where the YANKEE LADIE's are planning a LITTLE BINGO while perserving PEACHES (deciding they are all BITTERSWEET except the GEORGIA PEACH).

I sure hope MOTHER NATURE doesn't call on Mighty Mike while he eats his CHOCOLATE CHIP cookies (YUM, YUM!) and CUPCAKE and gets COOKIE CRUMB's all over himself. The little WHIPPER SNAPPER likes his cookies POPPIN' FRESH from the oven of the CAKE LADY or else the POOR BOY turns into a TOUGH DADDY.

GOOD GOLLY, the CRACKER JACK - MAINTENANCE MAN has a BENT WRENCH and can't fix Sam's SIX WHEELER with a HEAVY DUTY battery. I'll bet on a COPPER COIN that Sam wishes (on a WISHBONE of course) that he had continued South instead of doing a FLIPPER in order to join the chase.

Now the old BUS DRIVER will have to ride with the LADY TRUCK DRIVER (who is a former WACKY WAVE, a BLONDIE who thinks she is a BABY DOLL but is TOO TALL and looks like a SEA HAG 'cause she never uses a POWDER PUFF). Sam wanted to get out of here before the WESTWIND brings another SNOWFLAKE. Now he'll ride with that CRAZY LADY or wait with the rest of us, for a HEAT WAVE to bring us some SUNSHINE, a BLUE GRASSHOPPER, a pretty SUNFLOWER, a LITTLE ROBIN also a beautiful fluttering BUTTERFLY and the ICE CREAM MAN then we'll all be able to be a SPEED RACER with our RATTLE TRAP, RENAGADE and T-BIRD and join in the chasing.

Oh come WINDSONG, ride the SUMMER BREEZE. Come soon, before our TOM CAT turns into a WILD CAT, MR. "T" becomes like KAWLIGA and we all become a CRAZY NEIGHBOR.

Reflections

'Away from inflation!'

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

I always thought those cartoons of the man of the house going berserk when the monthly bills came in were a bit farfetched until one morning last week when the man of my house threw a rope around the chandelier.

"What are you doing?" I shrieked as he climbed up on the table.

"I'm going to hang myself," he answered, making a loop in the rope.

"My God, what are you going to hang yourself for?" I begged.

"Bills," he shouted. "Thousands and thousands of bills. Inflation is growing faster than my kids. But I'm going to end it all. Kick this table out from under me, will you, soon as I get this loop fastened around my neck."

"Wait," I begged. "I can't beat inflation without you. No one else makes money around here. Think of us. How will we live?"

"On my insurance . . ." he answered and stuck his head in the loop.

Just then my eyes fell on the morning paper, and right there in front of me was the solution.

"Look, look," I cried. "This ad tells how you can overcome your depression caused by inflation. It says 'Inflation, recession tension. Wouldn't you love to get away from it all . . . you can enjoy a great mini weekend or a carefree long vacation that fits your pocketbook . . . Take that rope off your neck and let's go see our travel agent.'"

That got to him and he took the rope off his neck and climbed off the table and went to see our favorite travel agent.

"It says here you have a carefree vacation to get away from inflation, to fit my pocketbook," my love said to the agent.

"Oh, you're so right. How about a carefree vacation kicking up the sand in some sunny spot away from inflation's woes?"

"Sounds good," my love said.

"That will be $895," the agent said.

"That's more than I have fitted in my pocketbook," my love said.

"Charge it," the agent said. "Think of getting away from your money worries lying on a beach by an emerald sea."

So we charged it.

The beach was sandy and the sun was hot, and that made us thirsty. It cost us $15 to quench that thirst, pro-rated over the day.

Sitting on the side of his bed that evening, my love looked in his pocketbook and he said, "I've spent $75 already and it's only the first day. When do we start getting away from inflation?"

"Think of the sun and the sand and the emerald water," I soothed him. "They will make you forget inflation."

Ten days later when we landed at the airport we were met by all of our bill collectors.

"How can you take a vacation in the sun when you owe us all this money?" they shouted in unison.

"We were trying to get over our tension caused by inflation," I told them because my husband couldn't talk. He was busy biting a couple of nails.

"We want to be paid . . . now!" they shouted. So my love took out his pocketbook and threw it in the middle of them. While they were fighting over it we split. As soon as we got home I called our lawyer.

"Isn't there something we can do about false advertising?" I asked him.

"It'll cost you," he answered.

"Charge it," I said and as I hung up the telephone I peeked into the dining room where my love was standing on the table with a loop of rope around his neck.

"Kick the table," he urged.

Bald Eagle Speaks

'East is east...'

By BOB AMEEN

It's a time for women to be women once again!

With commonsense and cooler heads now coming more and more into the picture, the women's liberation movement and the ERA movement is beginning to slow down.

It's about time. Personally, I'm getting sick of the whole situation, sick of some women trying in every possible way to emulate men's attire, sick of women wanting to do things they're not equipped to do, and even more sick of watching the silent American majority sit on their duffs doing nothing about it.

Why does a woman want to wear some sort of pants outfit every single day, with some outfits now affecting zippers in front! Have American women forgot what dresses and skirts are?

Judging from much of the wearing apparel in vogue for women of late, it would seem so. About all we men can do is to just ignore them. Maybe they'll go away!

What prompts a woman to want to be a fighter pilot, a soldier or a sailor, a mechanic, even a ditch digger? If some of them are doing it out of a sense of revenge or getting even with their male counterparts, then the time and effort expended certainly is not justified morally.

It doesn't take a genius to realize that women are not equipped physically and emotionally for some of the tasks that heretofore have been the sole domain of the masculine species.

How can an average woman hope to pick up and wield a heavy water hose squirting water under hundreds of pounds of pressure if she were assigned as a firefighter? How could an average woman soldier pick up a wounded male companion weighing 50 to 80 pounds more than herself and carry him to safety in the middle of combat?

The answer is an obvious as the nose on one's face. So, it would seem that it is time for the phony and hypocritical aspects of the women's liberation movement to be laid to rest once and for all.

As a famous writer once said, "East is east, and west is west, and never the twain shall meet." That sums up my feelings about women trying to be men.

On the Brighter Side

Now, Little Brother

By JIM BRADLEY

Many Americans are concerned about "Big Brother" watching over us, but now a new threat is apparent. "Little Brother."

That's right, little brother.

Now you may wonder what in the world this column is going to be about, but that puts us in the same boat. Nothing like starting out even, I always say.

Not too long ago I was walking down the hallway of an elementary school and saw some very artistic drawings crayoned unevenly on large manila paper and taped to the wall. The kindergarten class had drawn pictures of what they thought their mothers liked to do best. And that's what the large title read at the top: "What Mother Likes To Do Most."

Some of the children's comments were so engrossing I stopped, took out my pencil and paper, and jotted them down for posterity. The funny drawings, combined with the kids' thoughts, were hilarious and something might be lost in the translation.

But here goes anyway.

I'll jot down the child's scribbled comment, then in parenthesis I'll add the thoughts that came to my mind.

The first drawn pictures were common enough, like: "Watch TV", "cooking", "iron" and "wash the floor". Then things got interesting.

A boy had drawn a representation of a mother and a large round orange ball with the words: "Looking at the sun." (Sounds exciting, doesn't it? That's what she likes to do most, look at the sun.)

Another said: "Work around house on weekends." (Well, I guess that's better than not at all.)

An honest boy scribbled: "Sit down and do nothing." (Now how many mothers would actually like to do that most? He must have been looking at his father.)

Another boy said "She likes to visit." (She probably still had a coffee cup in her hand.)

"Scrubbing the floor." (That's what she likes to do most. Old' knobby knees, they call her.)

"In bed sleeping, while I'm watching TV," wrote another. (Sounds like Saturday morning in America.)

Probably the comment that gave me the biggest chuckle was the last one in line. It read: "Getting stuck on the roof." (Now I know mothers have their diversions just like everyone else. But getting stuck on the roof? This is what she likes to do most! Can't you imagine this mother being on a well-known television game show and winning a big trip someplace?)

(The announcer would ask her where she would like to go. She'd smile shyly and probably say: "Well, I have this thing about getting stuck on the roof. Do you suppose you could arrange to send me to the Empire State building and let me get stranded on top of it? That would be my highest goal.")

(It does sound a little odd, doesn't it? But then again, maybe she's just an average mother who's trying to get away from it all!)

Health Beat

Russ White and the PCHA

By RUSS TUTTLE
Director, Community Relations
Peoples Community Hospital Authority

If you pick up a newspaper, turn on a radio, or take the time to watch television, you'll fast discover that far too much of the news you read, hear, or have read to you is news of tragedy or news which you find to be outrageous.

This spate of bad news is perhaps symbolic of the times: but it's incumbent upon the various media to report it to you.

This afternoon, it's Saturday, I've just returned from a nursing home in the downriver community of Riverview. While at the facility, I was fortunate enough to take part in a ceremony honoring a most remarkable man. Thus, contrary to what we so often read in this medium, this column is going to be one of good news.

slated as an expression of volunteer community service.

Now the man who is going to be the subject of this column is named Russell V. White. He'll soon be age 81, and he's currently a resident of the downriver nursing home I referenced earlier.

Russ White is perhaps the embodiment of public service. Many, many years ago — it was 1928 — he was elected to the Lincoln Park City Council. There isn't anything really remarkable about his being elected to that City Council. However, when you discover that he served on the City Council for 40 years and eight months, you begin to have an appreciation for his dedication to his community.

Incidentally, for one 2-year term during that 40-year tenure, he also served as Mayor of Lincoln Park.

In 1945, Public Act 47, — the Joint Hospital Authority Act — was enacted. PCHA became the first group in Michigan to incorporate under the provisions of the Act.

Initially, PCHA covered only a small portion of Western Wayne County. In 1947, several downriver communities proposed to implement the Act to form a second hospital authority in Wayne County.

PCHA had already been in business for two years, and was making substantial progress in establishing health care delivery systems for its communities.

Russ White quickly understood that the creation of a second hospital authority might be considered merely a 'me-too' effort and that the effectiveness of the existing PCHA could be threatened.

He worked with several other downriver officials, and then approached PCHA with a proposal that all communities South and West of Detroit be invited to join the PCHA. He was the leader of this downriver group, and it was through his persuasiveness that the downriver communities ultimately became members of the PCHA.

Later in 1947, after Lincoln Park had become officially a PCHA member community, Russ was selected to be a member of the Board of Directors.

As was his wont, he accepted the new responsibility and immediately became a serious, hardworking Board member. How seriously did he take his responsibility? Well, he served from 1947 until March of 1978 — a period of 31 years. That 31 years of service is by far the record tenure for Board membership, and it's a record which probably will never be broken.

Russ White is not quite as active as he once was; age does have a way of slowing one down a bit. The Board of Directors on March 23, 1978, in recognition of his past meritorious service, named Russ White as PCHA Board Member Emeritus. He becomes thus the first person in the 35-year history of PCHA to be honored with such a title.

As I wrote at the outset, sometimes there is good news to report; this has been one of those times.

Even expert swimmers can drown

Even expert swimmers run a risk of drowning if they fall into very cold water while they are boating or fishing in the early spring, according to Kevin Killeen, safety program director for the Southeastern Chapter of the Red Cross.

"Many spring drowning deaths can be attributed to what the medical profession calls hypothermia, the numbing effect cold water has on the limbs and body," Killeen explained. "However skilled the swimmer is, he or she can drown if icy waters immobilize the arms and legs and make it impossible to swim or get out of the water."

Killeen suggested that early spring boat users and fishermen note these precautions:

(1) If you suddenly find yourself in extremely cold water, do not try to remove your clothing. It will help retain some body heat by reducing the flow of water over your body. Clothing can also trap and hold air which will add to your natural buoyancy.

(2) If you plan on being out on the water at this season, be sure to wear thermal underwear, a SCUBA diver's wet suit or other suitable clothing.

(3) If you do find yourself in cold water, get out of it as soon as possible. Ordinarily, the Red Cross advises staying with a capsized boat, but in this case it would actually endanger your life. Swim to the nearest point of safety — the shore or another boat — with or at right angles to the current, using an arm-stroke with an underwater recovery.

(4) Never go fishing or boating alone, and if possible, keep your boat within view of others so help is available in case of an accident.

(5) A victim from cold water should be brought into a warm room as soon as possible; wet or frozen clothing should be removed immediately. The victim should be rewarmed rapidly by being wrapped in a blanket or placed in a tub of warm, not HOT, water. If the victim is conscious, give him or her hot liquids — do not include alcoholic beverages.

(6) Medical aid should be obtained as soon as possible.

Waterlife surveyed

A waterlife walk will be conducted at the Kensington Metropark Nature Study Area near Milford on Sunday at 9 a.m.

Animal and plant life in and around a lake will be explored during a 2- to 2½ hour walk around Wildwing Lake. Join naturalist Dave Moilanen for a look at the plants and animals that are adapted to living in a watery environment and some of their springtime activities.

This program is free for individuals and families only. However, metropark vehicle entry permits are required.

Advance registration is required. To register or for more information, contact the nature center at 685-1561 (Milford).

Boat launch facilities open

Boat launching facilities of the Huron-Clinton metroparks now are open, including Metro Beach Metropark near Mt. Clemens, Stony Creek Metropark near Rochester and Utica and Kensington Metropark near Milford.

All watercraft users will be required to have a 1978 boat permit — annual regular, $5; senior citizen, $3; and daily, $1 plus the vehicle permit — annual — regular, $5 or senior citizen, $1 and daily, $1.

Watercraft operators using the metroparks must comply with the Marine Safety Act of 1976, plus local watercraft ordinances and Huron-Clinton metropark rules. There is a 10-mile speed limit on the lakes and no water skiing is permitted at Stony Creek Lake and Kent Lake (in Kensington Metropark).

METRO BEACH METROPARK, a 740-acre site near Mt. Clemens, has launching ramps that accommodate up to eight boats simultaneously, located along the Black Creek, which provide access to Lake St. Clair. Parking is available for 210 boat trailers and cars and additional parking is available in the main parking lot.

Due to high water along the Black Creek and Lake St. Clair, park officials caution boaters that the "No Wake" ordinance will be strictly enforced. Vehicles remaining in the park overnight are charged $1 addition to the metropark boating permit fees.

The ramps are open 7 a.m. to dusk. The park is open daily 8 a.m. to dusk, (then to 10 p.m. starting May 27). The park phones are 463-4581 (Mt. Clemens) or 963-3022 (Detroit).

STONY CREEK METROPARK, a 3,990-acre site north of Utica and near Rochester, has ramps that permit up to 10 simultaneous launchings and parking spaces for up to 150 cars and trailers located at the south end of Stony Creek Lake. The launch site has a building and restrooms, lounge area, vending machines for food service and a snack bar on weekends.

Park hours are 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily, to 10 p.m. starting May 27. For details call 781-4242 (Washington exchange).

Trailers, cars and boats are not permitted to remain overnight at the launch site at Stony Creek (except for those in the land storage area, which have been rented for the season).

For and about seniors

Retirement planning should be priority

By MAUREEN BEATTY

If "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," then planning for retirement should be high on our priorities list. Yet the average person spends 12 to 16 years preparing for his career goals, but little or no time preparing for the post working years.

"Preparation for Retirement," by Woodrow W. Hunter, should be mandatory reading for anyone planning on spending some years in leisure. In his chapter "Mental Health in Retirement," Hunter states that "much can be learned from retired people who are aging successfully." He goes on to list 10 reasons why:

"(1) They face reality. In other words they learned to accept the facts of life and to make the best of them. They are afraid to compromise when necessary.

"(2) They take responsibility. They do not blame others for their problems. They can accept help when it is needed, but they also make a major effort to solve their own problems.

"(3) They are interested in other people. They do not withdraw from life. They like doing things with and for other people. They make the effort to acquire new friends. They like their old friends but they also like to keep in touch with younger people.

"(4) They have strong and varied interests. Usually well adjusted older persons like to do many kind of activities, and they enjoy sharing activities with other people.

"(5) They are interested in new things as well as the old. Most of them agree that the world is changing faster than they can comprehend, but they still try to keep up with things. They are not afraid of the future and they accept changing times.

"(6) They look forward to the future. They live in the present and the future instead of the past. At least some of the things which they can reasonably expect to accomplish are projected into the future.

"(7) They watch their health. Well adjusted older people take the initiative to achieve good health. They do not dwell on their aches and pains.

"(8) They maintain a neat appearance. They take pride in their appearance and they usually have a strong interest in maintaining the place in which they live in good order.

"(9) They know how to relax. Older people who are aging successfully know how to relax and not to take life too seriously.

"(10) They adapt to changing circumstances. One of the strongest assets of older people is their ability to change their ideas and to change their ways of doing things when the situation requires it."

In reviewing this list, it becomes clear that all 10 rules can be carryovers from pre-retirement years. Part of preparing for retirement then, is merely the habit of adopting a healthy attitude as one's lifestyle.

Garden Doctor says...

This week's word from the Garden Doctor at the Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service is:

Q: Do I need to plant more than one fruit tree to get fruit?

A: That depends on which fruit trees you're planting. The vast majority of apples need another variety of apple for cross-pollination. Plums also need a cross-pollinator, with the possible exceptions of Stanley, Monarch, Shropshire and French Damson. All sweet cherries, apricots, and pears need cross-pollination.

The fruit trees that bear without a cross-pollinator are tart cherry, nectarines and quince.

Q: What are some shrubs that have fragrant flowers?

A: There are several to choose from all of which can be planted now. Spicebush, Lindera benzoin, has fragrant yellow flowers during April. It eventually grows to a height of 10 feet. Three viburnums are very fragrant. Burkwood viburnum reaches a height of 6 feet and blooms in late April. Fragrant viburnum also blooms in late April and reaches a height of 9 feet. Koreanspice viburnum flowers in early May and reaches a height of 6 feet. Beautybush, Kolkwitzia amabilis, has pink flowers in late May and attains a height of 12 feet. Mock-orange blooms in early June and is approximately 8 feet high. Other fragrant shrubs include pepperbush, amur honeysuckle, golden current, rose daphne, sweet, shrub, and both common and Chinese witch hazel.

Q: Can I fertilize a shade tree by sprinkling fertilizer beneath it?

A: The amount of fertilizer needed for a tree usually will burn smaller plants such as grass. Therefore, surface fertilizing is recommended only if the soil is devoid of vegetation. If plants are growing under the tree, make holes in the soil 18 inches deep and 2 feet apart under the spread of the branches. A one-inch pipe and sledge hammer work well for this task. Don't make any holes closer than 2 feet from the trunk. Use a high nitrogen lawn fertilizer that does not contain a weedkiller. Use 3 of a 10 percent nitrogen fertilizer for each inch of trunk diameter measured 4 feet above the ground or use 1½ of a 20 percent nitrogen fertilizer for each inch of diameter. Subdivide the calculated amount between the holes. The holes need not be closed.

Q: We have a very shady spot in the yard where grass refuses to grow. We are willing to try once more if you think we can succeed.

A: If you have not tried seeding with a fescue blend after properly working the soil, do give that a try. Creeping red fescue is the most shade-tolerant lawn grass available, but some areas are too shady for even that. Ground cover such as pachysandra or periwinkle or mulch can be used in these especially dark places.

A spring bird walk will be held at the nature study area of Kensington Metropark near Milford on May 7 at 8 a.m.

May is the peak month for spring bird migration. A myriad of bird species arrive enroute from their winter resorts.

Join park naturalist Bob Hotaling for the two-hour saunter along the trails, where the focus of the walk will be on techniques of identification and the methods of birding. Persons should have binoculars and wear appropriate foot gear.

This program is free for families and individuals only, but advanced registration is required. Vehicle entry permits are required.

County establishes Delinquent Tax Fund

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners has established a Delinquent Tax Revolving Fund to ease cash-flow problems and simplify budget planning in municipalities and school districts throughout the county.

Following unanimous approval of the idea by the board on April 11, the commissioners predicted the fund will be a "blessing" for the local units of government and school districts under its jurisdiction.

It is expected to provide particular relief for those communities with the most severe financial troubles, such as the City of Ecorse which recently was forced to borrow to meet payroll and other money obligations.

The fund is considered a provision for "instant paydays" for municipalities, school districts and other eligible taxing units. Under the fund, taxing units will early in the year receive from the county the entire amount of their taxes due, rather than having to wait for delinquent payments to trickle in over periods sometimes up to a year beyond deadline.

With establishment of the fund, the county treasurer is authorized to pay all eligible taxing units a lump sum equal to all their tax payments delinquent after settlement day, which is March 1 of each year.

"Knowing that they will receive all at once the full amount of the taxes they are due, the districts and municipalities are in a much more comfortable position for fiscal planning," said Board Chairman Jarrette Simmons, who urged the unanimous adoption.

"They can arrange programs and develop budget measures while being fully aware of their financial limits," she pointed out. "It enables them to look ahead with confidence."

Judging from delinquent taxes in 1976, the fund this summer could pay the City of Ecorse and its school district as much as $264,000 that otherwise might not be received until sometime in 1978. According to County Treasurer Raymond J. Wojtowicz, communities throughout the county can expect receipt of funds by late June, after local tax rolls have been audited and a proposed bond issue has been approved by the State Municipal Finance Commission.

To finance the fund, the county plans to borrow money by issuing three-year bonds not to exceed $30 million, but limited to the actual amount of all delinquent taxes in the county. The loan will be repaid with collections from taxpayers and interest earned from investments of the fund.

Detroit is excluded from the fund because it presently collects its own delinquent taxes. Detroit can join anytime, if it chooses to discontinue its own collection.

3A. Motion by Raspberry, supported by McAnally, to adopt Resolution No. 78-164:

RESOLUTION 78-164

WHEREAS: The property taxes on property located at 11055 Wahrman Road, Romulus, Michigan and more properly described as:

Lot eleven (11) of the Junction Subdivision of the Northeast ¼ of Section 20, Town 3 South, Range 9 East, Village of Romulus (now City of Romulus), Wayne County, Michigan, as recorded in Liber 17, Page 34 of Plats, Wayne County Records.

has remained unpaid since January 1978; and

WHEREAS: Said property has passed ownership to the State of Michigan, all in accordance with State Tax Statutes; and

WHEREAS: Mr. Glenn E. Spurlock has petitioned the City Council for a one (1) year extension to allow Mr. Spurlock time to raise funds to pay said taxes; and

WHEREAS: Section 2.11.311 (c) of Act 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as amended, provides that an owner may apply for such an extension. Further, that the local governing body, after hearing and considering all information provided by petitioner to substantial need may grant such extension.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED: By the City Council of the City of Romulus, that an extension of one (1) year be granted to Mr. Glenn E. Spurlock.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That copies of this Resolution be forwarded to the attention of the Lands Division of the Department of Natural Resources, and the Wayne County Treasurer.

Roll call vote showing: Ayes - McAnally, Cantrell, Carter, Canejo, Raspberry, Banks. Nays - None. Motion carried unanimously.

3B. Motion by Raspberry, supported by McAnally, to adopt Resolution 78-165:

RESOLUTION 78-165

WHEREAS: The City of Romulus is in receipt of a petition for the paying of that portion of Sargent Street lying between Lots 26 and 27, between Lots 33 through 84 inclusive, Waynecourse Subdivision, and signed by the owners of certain abutting land; and

WHEREAS: The City Council of the City of Romulus deems it necessary to improve said portion of Sargent Street and the abutting land by the paving of said portion of Sargent Street.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED: That the City Assessor be, and is hereby directed, to prepare a list of properties to be affected by said improvement according to the provisions of Section 2 of the City of Romulus Ordinance, Chapter XI, Article 1, and that the City Engineer prepare an estimate of costs thereof pursuant to Section 3 of said ordinance.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That the City Council hereby establishes that a public hearing shall be held on May 2, 1978 at 7:30 p.m., in the Romulus

City Council Chambers, 11111 Wayne Road, Romulus, Michigan, to discuss and hear objections to such proposed improvement and directs the City Assessor to publish and transmit by mail the notice of such public hearing required by Section 4 of said ordinance.

Dr. Arthur Smith Tucker, MD, has joined the radiology department at Wayne County General Hospital in Westland. Born in north China where his parents were medical missionaries, he was educated in that country, where Chinese was his primary language. He attended Oberlin College and earned his medical degree from Yale University. He served as chief radiologist for the Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission in Japan, under the auspices of the National Research Council, where he researched with survivors of the blast. Prior to coming to the county facility he was associate radiologist at University Hospitals in Cleveland, Ohio, and professor of radiology Case Western Reserve. A specialist in pediatric radiology, he will be working closely with the hospital's pediatrics department and finds the neonatal unit especially challenging and exciting.

Common spring task: Checking for rodent damage to landscape

Cold temperatures, drying sun, snow and ice, and nibbling rodents took their toll on landscape plants this year. Assessing damages, repairing injured plants and replacing dead ones are likely to be common tasks this spring.

According to Harold Davidson, horticulture specialist at Michigan State University, most of the damage will be fairly obvious. But some plants may not show the effects of winter injury for a year or more.

"If plants fail to flower, or bloom on the lower portions only, you'll know that low temperatures killed the exposed flower buds," he said. "Flower buds protected by snow are uninjured. Because shoot buds usually are not killed by cold, the plant should live and grow to flower another year."

Forsythia and peach especially are likely to have suffered flower bud loss.

Some plants that appear to have survived the winter actually may be doomed. For instance, boxwood and yews that were crushed by the weight of heavy snow may seem only bent. But if the bark on the main stems is broken, the circulation of water and nutrients through the plants will be cut off and the plants will literally starve to death. It may take 15 or 16 months for this to occur, however. By that time, the death of the plants may not be connected to the crushing they underwent this year.

Everygreens that weren't shaded against the direct rays of the sun may die from desiccation, or loss of moisture from their foliage. Because the roots could not take up moisture from the frozen soil to replace the water lost from the leaves, the foliage—and sometimes the whole plant—dies. Plants that were not completely killed should make excellent regrowth during the summer, if brown and brittle leaves and shoots are pruned before spring growth resumes, Davidson said. He noted that the plants may require some additional pruning later to reshape them.

Plants with broken or badly deformed branches also should be pruned. Bent or moderately deformed branches may be staked or tied to restore them to their natural form.

"Cold injury to plant roots is likely to be a problem this year, especially among container plants," Davidson said. Although the stem may still be alive, it will soon desiccate and die if the roots were killed. If the roots were only injured, the plant will survive but will not grow and develop normally.

"There's not much you can do for root-injured plants now except to care for them so that they aren't stressed by drought, insects or malnutrition," Davidson said. "Next fall, mulch the containers or store the plants in appropriate protection structures."

All winter damage to plants is not due strictly to the weather.

"Damage by rodents chewing on bark beneath the snow probably will be very serious this year," Davidson said. "Some damage on valuable ornamentals may be repaired, but extensive injuries may dictate that plants be replaced."

Two techniques may be used to salvage girdled plants: bridge grafting and inarching. In bridge grafting, a number of shoots are grafted across the area where bark was removed. Inarching requires that several young seedlings of the same species as the injured plant be planted around the base of it and grafted into the trunk above the girdled area. Bridge grafting can be done only if there is healthy bark above and below the girdling. Inarching is used when there is little or no bark below the girdled area or when the roots have been seriously injured.

Winter injury to plants probably will be relatively high this year, the specialist observed. Much of it could have been avoided, however, and similar damage can be avoided in the future. Screening evergreens to minimize moisture loss, supporting hedges and valuable specimen plants so they aren't crushed by snow, using poisonous baits or hardware cloth mouse guards to keep rodents from gnawing on bark, and mulching or storing container-grown plants to prevent cold injury in roots are inexpensive and effective ways to prevent costly injuries to landscape plants.

Artist to show works

The third annual art show at Security Bank in New Boston will be held from May 1 through May 5.

Oil paintings of area artists will be on display at the bank, located on Huron River Drive in New Boston. The hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Wednesday and 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Friday.

Are you proud?

Are you proud to be an American? That's basically the question that VFW Post 4434 is asking Belleville residents as Loyalty Day, May 1, approaches.

Mayor Justin Emerson has proclaimed May 1 as "Loyalty Day" in the city of Belleville and all area people are asked to display their flags this Monday as proof of their love for their flag and the country it represents.

"We're asking all people to show their patriotism and love of country by displaying their flags," said a spokesman for VFW Post 4434 Post and auxiliary.

"It is a day of loyalty to our flag and country, and we want to see some of the old-fashioned pride in our country displayed again," the Americanism chairman said.

The attributes the Veterans of Foreign Wars stress on Loyalty Day include patriotism, pride of country, loyalty to American ideals and faith in God.

Insurance commissioner says

No-fault saves $70 million over old system

No-fault auto insurance is costing Michigan policyholders some $70 million a year less than the old tort system and is paying more benefits quickly to more accident victims than any other insurance system in the country, according to state Insurance Commissioner.

Thomas C. Jones said a report based on studies by the Insurance Bureau and other organizations shows the public strongly supports most parts of the no-fault system.

However, the survey also shows people are frustrated and confused by cancellations, non-renewals, rating inequities and related difficulties with car insurance.

"These are problems that have nothing to do with no-fault itself," he emphasized, "but are the result of basic inadequacies in the whole personal insurance system."

He said consumers in states without no-fault raise insurance objections for the same reasons.

"Many of these problems would be solved under the proposed Essential Insurance Reform Act (House Bill 5196), which would make insurance available to everyone and put an end to cancellations and arbitrary ratings that have nothing to do with risk," Jones said.

The bureau's report contains the results of a survey of consumer attitudes toward Michigan no-fault and an analysis of the system's performance since it began in 1973.

Combined results of the studies show:

- The public strongly supports most elements of no-fault in Michigan.
- No-fault has met its promises to the public of correcting the problems of the tort system.
- Although insurance rates have gone up, no-fault has dampened rather than contributed to these increases.

The survey of consumer attitudes toward no-fault, conducted by Market Opinion Research of Detroit, indicates:

- More than 60 percent of people believe in providing full medical and rehabilitation benefits to all accident victims.
- Seventy nine percent believe that the right to sue for pain and suffering should be curtailed in order to provide more adequate medical and wage loss benefits.
- Sixty five percent are in favor of a coordination of benefits system that assures that people collect only once for each injury.

Jones noted that the response to no-fault collision was not as clear-cut.

The Market Opinion survey showed that about a third of those who called no-fault a "poor system" actually were dissatisfied with collision insurance, which pays for damage to a driver's own car and is not required coverage under Michigan no-fault. Many consumers preferred more choice in their collision coverages along with more choice over the rates they pay.

The Market Opinion survey showed that about a third of those who called no-fault a "poor system" actually were dissatisfied with collision insurance, which pays for damage to a driver's own car and is not required coverage under Michigan no-fault. Many consumers preferred more choice in their collision coverages along with more choice over the rates they pay.

However, another survey by a group of insurance companies showed that most people favored a change in the law to allow not-at-fault drivers to collect from the insurance companies of at-fault drivers.

"The problem we face is that these two statements of public attitude are fundamentally contradictory," Jones said. "If you can collect from someone else's company, all drivers must buy insurance to cover the chance they may cause an accident and you lose almost all flexibility in choosing coverages and rates."

"The contradictory consumer preferences show the great confusion which has resulted from no-fault collision."

Jones said the bureau is recommending changes in the no-fault law to increase consumer understanding of no-fault collision, provide minimum standards for use of deductibles, and guarantee that a driver's insurance will not be cancelled, non-renewed or increased in price based on not-at-fault accidents.

No-fault has been successful in correcting the shortcomings of the tort system it replaced in 1973, Jones said.

More people are receiving higher levels of compensation for accidents. When corrected for inflation and changes in the rates of injuries, the actual economic loss paid out is 60 percent higher with no-fault than with the tort system.

Payments are more timely. People previously waited months and years for payment, but most companies now are meeting the legal requirements to pay economic loss benefits within 30 days.

The number of auto negligence suits filed has dropped by 31 percent from pre-no-fault levels. There has been a substantial shift from overpayment of benefits to the least seriously injured to providing adequate benefits for all.

The coordination of benefits option — under which a person can collect for a loss from only one type of insurance — is saving consumers about $45 million a year. If everyone took advantage of this option, savings would be another $60 million, the report said.

Insurance rates in Michigan have gone up by an annual rate of about 14.5 percent since 1974. This is somewhat less than the national average rate increase and comparable to other major industrial states, whether they are no-fault or tort states. Insurance rates have risen more slowly than the prices of the products insurance buys.

A 1977 study by a national insurance research and consulting firm for the American Insurance Association indicates that the cost of the Michigan no-fault system to consumers is about $9.5 million a year less than the cost of the tort system.

Certain changes in the law would make no-fault even more responsive to the public's needs, and some technical changes would improve the efficiency of operation, Jones said.

In addition to passage of the Essential Insurance Reform Act, collision coverage, catastrophic claims, avoidance of duplication of benefits, suit threshold, survivors' and work loss benefits, and motorcycle coverage are areas of concern, Jones said.

He said the Insurance Bureau is recommending creation of a Catastrophic Claims Association to share the liability of personal injury protection claims in excess of $250,000 among all insurers writing auto insurance in Michigan.

Academy visit

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Roberts and their daughter, Debbie, and Mrs. Fred Brisee of New Boston recently visited Cadet Rickey Roberts a plebe (freshman), at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point N.Y., during the annual Plebe Parent Weekend activities. Roberts escorted his parents, sister and grandmother around the academy. They had the opportunity to meet with faculty members and gain firsthand knowledge of the rigorous schedule followed by Plebes at the academy. The cadet is a 1977 graduate of Huron High School.

Bill urges switch from violent TV

State Rep. Robert Law of the 36th District has introduced a resolution, urging Michigan television broadcasters to show educational and non-violent programming to children.

"Television is really a major force in the socialization of children," Law said. "A high school graduate is likely to have spent more time watching TV than sitting in a classroom."

"Yet the major portion of children's TV viewing is devoted to violence, and I don't believe this represents an accurate and complete picture of society."

Law, a Western Wayne County Republican, said he realized that the majority of station programming originates with the networks and that local broadcast stations often have only limited control over use of public service programming.

"Nevertheless, I am calling on the broadcasters throughout our state to show educational and informative public programming, which deals with non-violent issues at the times when children comprise a significant share of the viewing audience," Law said. "And I am asking them to pledge to do this in license applications and renewals."

The resolution also calls upon the broadcast networks to assist and enable their local television affiliates serving Michigan to show educational and non-violent programs to children.

If approved by the legislature, the resolution will be sent to all Michigan broadcast stations and to ABC, NBC and CBS.

State 'stars' Europe in east area festivals

Russia, England, Scotland and Michigan will all be featured in East Michigan festivals and events during the month of May, according to the East Michigan Tourist Association.

"From Russia With Music" will be featured at the Midland Center for the Arts May 5, 6 and 7. Memorial Day weekend May 27-29 will be highlighted in Mackinac City with the re-enactment of Chief Pontiac's Rebellion against the British, a three-day pageant at historic Fort Michilimackinac in the shadow of the famous Mackinac Bridge.

The Scottish people have their day in the sun during the weekend Highland Festival and Games at Alma May 27 and 28.

And Michiganians will celebrate the week of May 20-27 throughout the state with many and varied programs taking place each day in hundreds of communities.

Michigan's warm weather fishing season opens in late April and will be in full swing during May including trout fishing in all inland lakes and streams and in Lake Huron. Salmon runs still will be running in northern Lake Huron along with brown and lake trout. Charter and party boats and all boat livers and bait shops will be going full steam, seven days a week. Bass season will open May 27.

CITY OF ROMULUS REVENUE SHARING PUBLIC HEARING
HELD APRIL 14, 1978.

Administrative Officials in Attendance: William M. Oakley, Mayor Leonard J. Folmar, Clerk

Meeting called to order at 10:00 a.m. by Mayor William M. Oakley. Mayor Oakley: The City of Romulus proposes the following uses of Revenue Sharing Funds:

|-----------------------------------------------|--------------|
| Environmental Protection - Refuse Contract    | $192,250.00 |
| Health - Ambulance Contract                   | 6,000.00     |
| Social Services for Aged - Senior Citizens    | 12,000.00    |
| Public Safety - Wayne County Sheriff Contract | 181,310.00   |
| Recreation - Capital Outlay                   | 56,750.00    |
| Libraries - Library Contract                  | 81,290.00    |
|                                               | $529,600.00 |

Mr. Richard Campbell. (Citizen): Are any of these funds relating to youth services?

Mayor Oakley: Yes, the money for the Wayne County Sheriff Contract is a supplement of what our total cost will be. So finances are available for youth services.

Folmar: The City's Budget should be set up so that if Federal funding were not available, the City would still be able to maintain its essential services. Mayor Oakley adjourned the meeting.

Energy assistance deadline is April 30

Low-income individuals, as well as senior citizens with annual income of less than $7,000, have until Sunday to submit their applications for the energy assistance program created under Public Act 278 of 1977, Sen. William Faust (D-Westland) has announced.

"The deadline for submitting an application is rapidly approaching. If you think you may be eligible, and you have not submitted an application, I urge you to do so immediately," Faust said. "It is your right to receive the assistance for which you are eligible."

The law, creates a program designed to assist many senior citizens and lower income individuals in meeting their fuel costs. However, applications are coming in at a much slower rate than had been anticipated.

Faust, who is the majority leader of the Senate, said: "Applications for the program may be obtained from county social services offices, local area agencies on aging, fuel suppliers, and other community organizations."

"If anyone is having trouble in applying for the program, they may call or write my office and I'll be happy to assist them. Another alternative is to call the state's toll-free hotline for this program at 1-800-292-5930," Faust said.

The program provides benefits according to family size and income, up to a maximum of $200. Payments will be made directly to the energy provider, if the supplier has been selected by the Department of Social Services for collective payment. If a recipient purchases energy from an energy provider not selected by the department for collective payment, a check will be sent to the recipient which shall require two endorsements, one from the recipient and one from the energy provider. According to Faust, P. A. 278 appropriated $38 million to the Department of Social Services for implementation of this home heating subsidization program which is expected to benefit an estimated 300,000 Michigan households. "Many low-income people have the misconception that if they live in condominiums or in low-income apartment dwellings, where there is only one central electric or gas meter for all persons involved they may not be eligible for this subsidy," Faust said. "I would like to assure these people that they are, indeed, eligible. The legislature recently adopted House Concurrent Resolution 634 declaring their eligibility." This resolution expresses legislative intent that a procedure shall be developed by the Department of Social Services whereby persons living in condominiums or low-income dwellers who meet the requirements for reimbursement will be eligible for participation, even if an energy account is not in the name of the individual applicant. "With home heating bills as high as they were this past winter, I would hope that all those who think they may be eligible for this program will take the time to fill out an application," Faust said, "and do it before April 30th."

Lasers' role studied on 56

When first invented 18 years ago, lasers were called "a solution looking for a problem;" nobody could think what to do with them. On May 10 at 8 p.m. on Channel 56, "Nova" examines the roles that lasers play in today's and tomorrow's world. The show, entitled "The Light of the 21st Century," will be repeated May 13 at 4 p.m.

One of the first practical applications of the laser was in surveying. The laser's narrow beam made an ideal leveling device, which is now used extensively in the construction industry.

Industry also uses the laser as a precision welder. Lasers are used in dentistry and medicine to excise tumors and cancerous cells, attach retinas and to perform sterile, bloodless surgery. And what of future possibilities of the laser? A giant laser in California has achieved the temperatures of the center of the sun-a step toward harnessing nuclear fusion, the sun's energy production process.

"Nova" also looks at the future of lasers in communications. Engineers predict that by the year 2000, laser telephone traffic can be increased a million-fold and take up less cable space than conventional copper, which is becoming a scarce resource.

New possibilities for the laser are surfacing almost daily. "Nova" shows how "the light of the 21st century" has stepped out of science fiction firmly into science fact.

Kensington golf course is open

The golf course at Kensington Metropark near Milford is now open. The 18-hole course covers 6,395 yards, and the par is 71. Hours — (when weather permits due to morning frost conditions — are 8 a.m. to dusk daily, with earlier times on Saturday, Sunday and holidays and extended hours later in the season.

Rates are weekends and holidays, 9-hole, $3.50, 18-hole, $6; and weekdays, 9-hole, $3, 18-hole, $5.

Golfers must provide their own equipment, however, power carts, hand carts and a limited line of accessories are available at the Golf Starter Building. Power cart rates are $9.50 for 18-holes and $5 for 9-holes (plus 4 percent tax), with hand carts renting for 50 cents.

Food service also is available at the snack bar at the golf starter building, and there is space for 114 cars in the parking lot.

For additional information, persons should contact the golf course starter building at Kensington Metropark at 685-1408 (Milford exchange).

The 1978 vehicle entry permits are required.

Mrs. Seaman is delegate to DAR confab in Capitol

By MRS. JOSEPH SPRING
699-4021

Mrs. Russell Seaman (Phyllis) of Savage Road accompanied the other delegates from Ypsilanti Chapter DAR to Washington, D. C. this past week. Together they attended the National Convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Milton Smith of Wabash Street was taken to Beyer Memorial Hospital in Ypsilanti April 12 and put in intensive care for several days. At present writing he is much better.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Mark Williams of Manitou Springs, Colo. of the birth of their first child, a baby girl, on March 5. She was named Darcy Renee and is the granddaughter of former Belleville Road residents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Williams, now of Santa Maria, Calif., and Mrs. Henry (Alice) Herkimer of Denton Road, the latter having spent some time with the young family in March.

Recent weekend guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Parker of South Service Drive were the former's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Allen, and their daughter, Connie, from Dienna, W. Va.

Mrs. Lester (Marguerite) Heywood of Farmington Hills was a guest for several days this past week of her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. George Robson of Tyler Road.

Sunday dinner guests at the Bedell Street home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clayton were their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Munce and their son, Bradley, from Brighton.

Paula Dolph of Pittsburgh, Pa. spent last weekend with her parents, the Albert Dolphs of Edgar Street.

Mrs. Dorothy Kellas of Margery Street was a guest of Idylls of the Temple Chapter No. 465, OES, on Monday evening at a dinner and initiation. Members of the Strand-Weeks Club put on the work. Dorothy took the station of treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Orr of Crowley Street were recent guests of the former's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. William Slove of Anchorage, and a nephew and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bissell of Oscoda, who joined them for the day.

Having purchased the West Huron River Drive home of the late Orville Dolph, Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Dolph of Ypsilanti recently moved into their new home.

Mrs. Leon Boldt of Roland Street accompanied her sister, Mrs. Lyle Cumberly of Ypsilanti, and their aunt, Mrs. Sylvia Johnson of Ypsilanti, and Mrs. Fred Henley of Flint to Erie on Saturday where they visited Mrs. Johnson's sister, Mrs. Cora Kronback, who has been a patient at Frenchtown Convalescent Home for several months.

After spending the winter months at Boynton Beach, Fla., George S. Renton is now staying at his old home on Martinsville Road before joining his family in Northern Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Deering of West Columbia Avenue and Mrs. Winifred Gault of Roland Street motored to Chelsea on a recent Sunday where they visited friends at the Methodist Home, among them Mr. and Mrs. Otto Buege and Mrs. Imogene Cole.

Sunday dinner guests at the Crowley Street home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Orr were members of their family: Mr. and Mrs. Larry Orr and daughter, Laura, of Flint; Lanny Orr from Mt. Pleasant, and Lynn Orr and a friend from Romulus.

On April 15, Mrs. A. H. Amrhein of Bemis Road accompanied her sister-in-law, Mrs. Joseph Spring of Liberty Street and her son, Herbert Spring of Plymouth, to Dearborn where they called on Mrs. Spring's sister, Mrs. William F. Damske, who has been seriously ill. They found her much improved but still at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hasse of Dearborn.

Weekend guests at the Wabash Street home of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Potts were a former Belleville resident, Roy Keys of Punta Gorda, Fla., and his daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Arba Clawson of West Lafayette, Ind.

MR. AND MRS. CLINTON V. HORTON

Congratulations go to Hortons on 60th anniversary

Sixty years of togetherness were observed Sunday, April 23, when relatives and friends gathered to pay honor to Mr. and Mrs. Clinton V. Horton who formerly made their home in the community of Denton.

Mrs. Horton was Helen Hammond of Willis when she and Clinton Van Horton exchanged nuptial vows in the Methodist parsonage in Ypsilanti on April 27, 1918. In the ensuing years, six children were added to their family tree as were 18 grandchildren and 32 great-grandchildren.

Hosting the celebration at the PNA Lodge were their four sons and two daughters: Clinton and Charles of Belleville; Mrs. Melburn (Hilda) Fraser of Ypsilanti; Roy of Midland; James of Cupertino, Calif., and Mrs. Frank (Pat) Korgal of Belleville.

Well-wishers came from Stockton, Calif.; Oxon Hill, Md.; Meeteetse, Wyo.; Keego Harbor, Grosse Pointe, Wayne, Romulus, Midland, Gaylord, Ypsilanti, Richville, Warren, Pinckney, Detroit, Sanford, Battle Creek, Tipton, Westland, and Belleville for the occasion. Among those attending was Mrs. Kate Warblow, who had been an attendant at the Horton's wedding.

In 1945, after 27 years as Denton residents and Mr. Horton's retirement from the Wayne County Road Commission, the couple made the move to Clear Lake near Johannesburg. Members of the Senior Citizens of Gaylord, the man-of-the-house spends his leisure time hunting, fishing and doing carpentry work while his wife enjoys having the time to sew and do embroidery work.

Spear and dunk

A fabulous and fun way to entertain guests is with strawberry spears, making use of fresh California berries which are currently on the produce shelves in your favorite market. Make up a variety of dips and let guests do their own spearing and dunking for a different flavor treat.

Strawberry spears

Ready for some good news? Fresh California strawberries are back in profusion, a sunny gift from the golden state.

California produces over 70 percent of the nation's strawberries, and now is the time to take advantage of the bounty. California strawberries will be available into the late fall months, but now until mid-May is the peak of the fresh strawberry season. A fail-proof fruit, strawberries turn ordinary into extraordinary! From topping breakfast cereal to jazzing up just plain ice cream, fresh California strawberries are unbeatable.

To make sure every berry is enjoyed to the fullest, the California Strawberry Advisory Board has some suggestions for selection and storage. Choose shiny, rich-red berries with bright green, fresh looking caps. They do not ripen after being picked, so think "red" when you buy. Never wash strawberries or remove their caps until you are ready to use them. The natural protective outer layer and the caps help to preserve their flavor, texture and nutrients. Speaking of nutrients, did you know that one cup of fresh strawberries contains more than the day's requirement for Vitamin C and has only 60 calories?

Now comes the difficult decision. Which way to serve them? If you can't decide on one way, how about enjoying them in a variety of different flavored dips. Fill a large bowl full of chilled, bright red strawberries, leaving the caps on for an eye-catching centerpiece. Have smaller bowls handy, filled with a variety of dips, such as snowy powdered sugar, chocolate fondue, or dairy sour cream with a dish of brown sugar close by. All simple, all delicious.

Strawberry spears

- 2 pints California strawberries
- 1/2 cup heavy cream
- 1/2 cup dairy sour cream
- 1/4 cup powdered sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 teaspoon finely grated lemon peel
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice

Wash and stem berries. Spread on paper towel-lined tray to dry. Refrigerate. Beat cream stiff. On low speed, beat in remaining ingredients. Turn into serving bowl. Chill. At serving time, arrange berries on tray, around bowl of dip. Let guests spear berries with fondue forks and swirl in cream dip. Makes about 2 cups dip. Serves 6 to 8.

Other dips

- (1) Blend equal parts stiffly whipped cream and fruit flavored yogurt.
- (2) Into 1 cup stiffly whipped cream stir 2 to 3 tablespoons of any one of the following: sweet marsala, creme de cassis, orange flavored liqueur, hot cocoa mix, light, mild flavored molasses. Add powdered sugar to taste. All recipes have been tested by a consumer panel.

They're engaged

Karen Hill of Saline and Ralph Rafalski of Belleville are engaged and making plans for an autumn wedding. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mancel Hill of 320 W. Bennett St., Saline, who are announcing the betrothal. A 1977 graduate of Saline High School, the bride-elect is employed at Hoover Universal, Saline Die Casting, Inc. Her fiance, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rafalski Sr. of 10195 Haggerty Rd., Belleville, graduated from Belleville High School in 1976 and is now employed by Hydra-Matic Division of General Motors at Willow Run. Trinity Lutheran Church has been reserved for the young couple's Sept. 23 altar date.

Winkelmann-Byce exchange vows in Kalamazoo church

The First Presbyterian Church of Kalamazoo was the setting April 22 for the double ring rite which united Linda Kay Byce and Edward Roland Winkelmann Jr., both of Saline, in holy matrimony.

Dr. Lewis A. Briner conducted the five o'clock ceremony before some 100 close friends and relatives.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Charles Byce Jr. of Kalamazoo, was given in marriage by her father. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Roland Winkelmann of 48420 Denton Rd., Belleville, are parents of the bridegroom.

Attending the young couple at their afternoon wedding were Josephine Bulkley of Washington, D.C. and Robert Sinila of Ypsilanti, the maid of honor and best man, respectively.

Jennifer Lynn Winkelmann of Ann Arbor was flowergirl and the corps of ushers included Robert Winkelmann of Plymouth and James Winkelmann of Belleville, brothers of the bridegroom, and William Byce of Kalamazoo, brother of the bride.

Following a buffet reception at the Park Club in Kalamazoo, the newlyweds departed for their 2-weeks honeymoon in Nova Scotia. On their return home they will reside at 3023 Woodland Hills Dr., Ann Arbor.

The new Mrs. Winkelmann is a graduate of Loy Norrix High School in Kalamazoo and the University of Michigan where she affiliated with Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. At the present time she works as a parks and recreation consultant in Manchester.

Her husband, who graduated from Cooley High School in Detroit, attended the University of Michigan and also served with the U. S. Marine Corps. He currently is employed as a structural steel fitter for Ann Arbor Prototype Industries.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD R. WINKELMANN, JR.

Washtenaw CC's Big Band sets concert

Washtenaw Community College's Big Band, which performed in New Orleans last weekend in the French Quarter and at the Performing Arts Center in that city, has won national awards in competitions in Michigan and Illinois and is under the direction of Morris Lawrence, music instructor at the College.

On its return, the band will present a concert for area residents which will feature selections from its New Orleans performance. This concert on Sunday, April 30 at 2:30 p.m. in the Second Floor Lounge of the Learning Materials Center of Washtenaw Community College, is at no charge and is open to the public.

In addition to the Big Band, the Washtenaw Community College Jazz Combo will perform at the Sunday concert.

The Jazz Combo has been invited to present several concerts this summer in Ann Arbor's sister city, Tübingen, Germany as part of that city's celebration of its 900th birthday.

For Mother's Day

Send her to college

There's no question about it...Every woman wants to be remembered—especially on Mother's Day. So why not send her to College Week?

What is College Week? It's a four-day experience in lifelong learning at Michigan State University in East Lansing. The program, sponsored by the Family Living Education program of the MSU Cooperative Extension Service, is designed for anyone whose interests include the family, personal enrichment or community concerns.

College Week, June 19-22, will focus around the theme, "Family Impact on the Future." Participants attend classes, workshops, film festivals and exhibits. Evening options include get acquainted activities, a play, a planetarium show, shopping and films. The more than 50 class options include some of today's most popular issues: The Impact of TV on Children, Survival for the Woman on Her Own, Stress and Coping, Food — Your Political Concern, Developing Self-Esteem in You and Your Family and Getting a Handle on Community and Organizational Conflict.

All of these classes mentioned above as well as more than half of the others offered are being designed for reteaching through the use of Self-Teaching Packets developed for a loan program to volunteer organizations or groups through Michigan State University, Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service. Local organizational leaders may find this feature of College Week quite helpful in planning programs for the coming year.

Registration is open to everyone through June 1. The cost for room, board and registration is $62.

Blood donors needed for bloodmobile

The Huron Health Committee is announcing its annual drive for urgently needed blood donors. The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be located at St. Paul Lutheran Church on 19109 Craig St. in New Boston on Wednesday, May 3, from 1 to 7 p.m.

In order to help assure that all types of blood are readily available to the Red Cross program the year around, you are urged to stand up and be counted as a blood donor from the community.

With community coverage, the Red Cross offers complete blood pages of 17 and 66.

Pork chops with rhubarb

Spring produce teams with pork to provide refreshing dinner dishes. This recipe that couples the tangy taste of rhubarb with juicy pork loin chops is a savory example, recommended by Reba Staggs, home economist, National Live Stock and Meat Board.

PORK CHOP—RUBARB BAKE

6 pork rib or loin chops, cut ¾ to 1 inch thick
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 cups bread cubes
¼ teaspoon salt
one-third cup brown sugar one-third cup granulated sugar
3 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon

1 package (20 ounces) frozen unsweetened rhubarb or 5 cups ¾-inch pieces fresh rhubarb

Brown chops in lard or drippings in frying-pan, remove to absorbent paper and season with 1 teaspoon salt and pepper. Stir bread cubes into drippings in frying-pan and sprinkle with ¼ teaspoon salt. Mix sugars, flour and cinnamon and stir into rhubarb. Spread half of cubes in 13 x 9-inch utility dish. Spoon half of rhubarb over cubes and arrange chops on rhubarb. Spoon remaining rhubarb over chops. Cover tightly with foil and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 50 minutes. Remove cover and top with remaining cubes. Bake 10 minutes longer or until chops are tender. 6 servings.

They'll wed in August

The First Unitarian Church of Ann Arbor has been reserved for the Aug. 12 wedding of Patti Jane Perry of Saline and Christopher Colin Godwin of Ann Arbor. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Frederick Perry of 11880 Macon Rd., Saline, formerly of Belleville, announce their daughter's engagement and summer altar date. Miss Perry, who attended Belleville area schools most of her life, graduated in 1975 from Saline High School. At the present time she is a senior studying microbiology at the University of Michigan. Also in his senior year at U-M, the prospective bridegroom is pursuing a major in limnology. A 1975 alumnus of Huron High School in Ann Arbor, he is the son of Dr. and Mrs. William C. Godwin of 1205 Country Club Rd., Ann Arbor.

Around town

Brides-elect are 'showered'

By LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

The first in a series of pre-nuptial parties planned for Bernadette Sietz took place Sunday, April 16, at the home of her aunt, Clara Bokon of Willis Road. Tagged "miscellaneous", the shower was co-hosted by Helen Sietz and Lillian Sietz of Belleville, also aunts of the bride-elect.

The social afternoon centered on the opening of gifts in which the future wedding attendants had a hand. Kathy Bokon of Union Lake; Wendy Kivi of Ann Arbor; Mary Alice Sietz of Ypsilanti and Rita Sietz of Belleville took charge of the ribbons and wrappings.

At intervals, names were drawn with the following taking home a variety of prizes; Ella Bokon of Dearborn Heights; Grace Sietz of Trenton; Judy Sayre, Mary Alice Sietz and Karen Sietz of Ypsilanti; Mary Anne Hudge of Ann Arbor, and Shirley Hudge, Mary Ann Emerson, Lee Smith, Jean Chudzinski, Kimberly Lewis, Cindy Pavelka, Jan Ross, Rosemary Sietz, Anne Davie and Jane Bokon of Belleville.

Flo Hudge of Belleville received the door prize and, as they departed, each guest was presented with a potted geranium from Bokon Greenhouses.

Jan Ross, Mary Ann Emerson and Grace Sietz assisted with the lasagna dinner while Julie Ross and Kimberly Lewis served beverages. For the occasion, the family room was festooned with yellow streamers and wedding bells.

Bernadette, the daughter of the Stanley Sietzs of Sumpter Road, has a May 27 altar date with Bob Garbe of St. Clair Shores. St. Anthony's Catholic Church will be the setting for the four thirty wedding.

PLANNING FOR JUNE

Marilyn Cook of Romulus, who's busy with plans for her approaching June wedding, was guest of honor Sunday, April 9, at a kitchen shower given by her two sisters-in-law, Janet Cook of Dearborn Heights and Sara Cook of East Lansing. Held at the former's home, the party was attended by some 28 guests, mostly high school and college friends of the bride-to-be.

Luncheon at one thirty highlighted the afternoon, guests being invited to a do-it-yourself salad bar which was arranged beneath a canopy of mint green, yellow and white streamers. Two of the honoree's nieces, Pattian Cook and Jennifer Cook, poured punch, tea and coffee.

The group mainly enjoyed hearing of Marilyn's recent trip to Spain and catching up on each others' activities. The one game the hostesses planned resulted in prizes of gingham picture frames (handmade by Janet Cook) for Mildred Breckinridge of Redford, Carol Maizur of South Lyon and Eleanor Woods of Ann Arbor.

Marilyn and her fiance, Karl McMann of Toledo, Ohio, will be married June 2 at the chapel on the campus of Michigan State University.

A Vintage Year for Automobiles

1903 proved to be a very hot year for the fledgling automobile industry. At the 3rd National Automobile Show, which ran from January 17-24, all the latest styles were introduced. These included square hoods, honeycomb radiators and a new entry in the automotive field, the 1903, 7.3 horsepower, one cylinder Cadillac runabout.

The Transportation Collections of Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn offer visitors a chance to view the first year Cadillac, as well as other 1903 models, including the Packard Model F, Marr Autocar, Martini Touring car and the curved cash Oldsmobile.

In Quirk School Cluster

Girl Scouts have busy spring

The Quirk School Girl Scout cluster held its annual banquet during Girl Scout Week and this year invited their dads for a Father-Daughter get-together at North Junior High School.

Using the theme, "Worlds to Explore", the girls from each troop provided decorations and entertainment. Brownie Troop 337 chose "World of Our Out-of-Doors"; Junior Troop 277, "World of Today and Tomorrow"; Junior Troop 587, "World of People"; Brownie Troop 354, "World of Arts" and Brownie Troop 402, "World of Well Being."

Special guest for the occasion was Luci Chambers, Field Director from the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council.

Special awards were given to the eldest dad present, the youngest dad, the dad with the most daughters, the dad with the youngest daughter and a Superman Award went to the man who came as a substitute for a father.

On April 1 Junior Girl Scout Troops 277 and 587 from Quirk School held a special "Clean Up the Environment" project while they camped out at Camp Linden.

While on a hike, they picked up the rubbish in the ditches and along side the roads. After they had collected the bags of trash, they took them back to camp to be disposed of properly.

Brownie Troop 402 of Quirk School traveled to Chelsea April 22 and was taken on a tour of the Chelsea Milling Plant. After seeing how Jiffy Mix is made and packaged, the girls were treated to snacks and given a box of Jiffy products to take home.

Enroute back to school, they stopped at McDonald's for lunch to round out their day's activities.

Junior Girl Scout Troop 587 held a bake sale April 22 in front of the Secretary of State Office on Main Street. All goodies were prepared by the Scouts and their mothers.

The goal of the sale was to earn enough money for a trip to Holland, Mich. over Memorial Day weekend.

Energy Crisis

That's what all of us fatties have. Oh, I'm still a fattie after slim years. Fat is the key producer of energy, and energy not used by the body is stored in the form of — you guessed it! FAT! Vicious cycle, isn't it?

What's more, the fatter you get, the less you want to move, the less energy is used, the more energy is stored, and the fatter you get etc., etc., etc., like one of those monotonous songs that children delight in singing.

There is no delight in storing energy in the form of fat. Cosmetically, the appearance deteriorates. Physically, the body begins to give way under the strain. Emotionally, it's depressing. It is the only form of energy conservation in this year of 1978 that's totally unpatriotic.

One of the things about dieting that has always intrigued me is that so many dieters connect the words diet-fat-bread in a threesome. For many, the first thing to be deleted from the program of eating for diet is bread. The fattie feels that foregoing the staff of life will mean an automatic weight loss of four pounds a week. Bread is the easy scapegoat (it could never be the apple pie) for every excess pound.

Yet for the dieter and non-dieter alike, a certain amount of energy is necessary daily. One of the best ways to obtain that energy is in the form of a limited amount of carbohydrate. The best and simplest carbohydrate around is enriched bread, eaten at breakfast and lunch. I love the diet-sliced type merely because I love to fool myself with two slices of bread that equals one.

I also like to disguise my bread in various ways such as:

Crepes For Two

- 4 slices diet-sliced bread
- 2 slices raw onion
- 4 oz. chicken
- 2 oz. Muenster cheese
- ¼ cup mushrooms
- ½ stalk celery
- ½ Cup bouillon - chicken
- salt and pepper
- garlic

Cook celery and mushrooms in bouillon til celery is soft. Grind chicken, celery, mushrooms and raw onions. Season to taste. Roll out bread (after peeling off crust) very thin. Divide filling in fourths and spread on each slice. Cover with cheese (½ oz. on each roll). Bake or broil until cheese is bubbly.

This supplies energy, the exactly right amount of energy, for an adult woman to use up during an afternoon. There will be no excess showing up on the bill at the weekly weigh-in.

There may be very little you or I can do about the energy crisis in the nation. The energy crisis generated by our own fat is another thing. Let's fuel up with just enough to burn off economically and patriotically. At least this is one crisis that a person can overcome without federal assistance!

This Won't Hurt a Bit

The steady drone of the electric dental drill all began with the invention of George Green of Kalamazoo, Mich. His Jan. 26, 1875, patent for an "electro magnetic dental tool" featured an engine that was too heavy to be practical and batteries that were too costly to maintain, so older methods prevailed for a time.

Robert A. Everett said it.

One Moment, Please

America's first transcontinental telephone call was made Jan. 25, 1915, between two pioneers in the field. Alexander Graham Bell, in New York City, repeated his famous "Come here, Watson, I need you" to his aide, Thomas Watson. Watson responded in San Francisco, almost 3,000 miles away. Exhibits featuring the development of the telephone are part of the Hall of Technology at Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn.

For two weekends

Bonstelle to stage 'Arms'

George Bernard Shaw's anti-romantic comedy "Arms and the Man" will open at 8:30 p.m. Friday at the Bonstelle Theatre for a two-weekend run. The popular comedy will play at the Wayne State University theatre at 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sundays. The final performance will be May 7. "Arms and the Man" is the first of Shaw's self-titled "Pleasant Plays" and his first to be produced commercially. Alan S. Downer wrote that "the comedy satirizes the conventions of romantic operetta, with its proud Byronic hero, its idealistic heroine, its Graustarkian setting and deeds of derring-do." Ironically, the play was later adapted into romantic operetta form by Oscar Straus. In this version the heroine sang the famous aria, "My Hero," and the title was changed to "The Chocolate Soldier."

The play centers around Bluntschli, a fugitive Serbian officer, and Raina, a young Bulgarian lady who helps him hide from his enemy. The frightened, exhausted and starving soldier shatters her romantic illusions about war, but manages to charm her again in spite of this.

The cast includes Mark Johannes as Bluntschli, the chocolate cream soldier, and Randi Sanfield as Raina. Also in the production are Brian C. G. Gagne, Daniel Enright, John Evans, Sandra Prappas, Jaye Cooper and Jeffrey Dreisbach.

The play is directed by N. Joseph Calarco, with set design by Blair Vaughn Anderson, costumes by Ric Rice, and lighting by Bill O'Donnell Jr.

For information and reservations contact the Wayne State University Theatre box office, located in the Hilberry Theatre lobby (Cass and Hancock), at 577-2960.

Pilobolus Dance Theatre

Troupe interprets body movements

Pilobolus Dance Theatre will bring to Music Hall Center some of the most extraordinary concepts ever seen on stage.

Beginning May 5, at 8:30 p.m., this fantastic six-member troupe will present a startling interpretation of body movement commonly known as dance. With Pilobolus it's a whole lot more.

Seven years ago, a Dartmouth College dance teacher persuaded four student jocks that dancing was suited to their athletic-gymnastic inclinations. With the addition of mime and comedy plus two female members, Pilobolus began an adventure which would soon bring them worldwide acclaim.

In 1973, Pilobolus won first prize in a dance competition at the Edinburgh Festival in Scotland. Since then, they have appeared on "The Tonight Show" starring Johnny Carson; their Broadway debut was made in November 1977; and they were filmed and appeared on national public television last December. The New York Times named them one of the top 10 cultural events of 1977.

From Tokyo to South America, critics have used every imaginable word to describe the visual effects created by Pilobolus. The dancers' bodies are continually twisting, stretching, folding, unfolding and wrapping around each other seeming to defy gravity.

"We've researched very well what it's like to be upside down rather than right side up," said Jonathan Woken, co-founder of the group. They perceive movement as ever-changing forms flowing out of each other with an amazing sense of balance and weightlessness. The dancers have a real trust and sensitivity toward each other as they attach themselves to form incredible images.

This is a tremendously energetic group of highly skilled performers who make the art of dance a lot of fun. Pilobolus has been called "irresistible" by the Boston Globe, "provocative" at the Chicago Daily News, and "great fun" by the New York Times.

The performances are scheduled for 8:30 p.m. May 5 and 6 and 2 p.m. May 7. The box office at 350 Madison Avenue is open from 12 noon to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Convenient telephone purchasing is possible by calling 963-7680 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Group rates are available from Joan Heidt at 963-7622.

In the armed forces

Williams joins Army through DEP

Michael G. Williams, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles William of Leroy, Romulus, recently joined the U.S. Army through its Delayed Entry Program.

Pvt. Williams, who will graduate from Romulus Senior High School this spring, will enter the Army on active duty July 28. He will take his basic training at Ft. Leonardwood, Mo.

Also in the armed forces:

Airman Craig S. Adams, the son of Mrs. Marleen M. Adams of Taft Avenue, Romulus, has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations. Completion of this training earned him credits towards an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Airman Adams will now receive specialized training in the aircraft equipment maintenance field.

The airman is a 1977 graduate of Romulus High School.

Airman Ronald L. O'Dell, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie D. O'Dell of Harrison Road, Romulus, has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

Airman O'Dell will now receive specialized training in the aircraft equipment maintenance field.

The airman is a 1977 graduate of Romulus Senior High School.

Airman Ricky L. Wilson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wilson of Harrison, Romulus, has been assigned to Sheppard Air Force Base, Tex., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

Airman Wilson will now receive specialized training in the aircraft equipment maintenance field.

The airman attended Romulus High School.

Marine Pfc. John P. Kelly III, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raul Garcia of Inkster Road, Romulus, has completed the infantry combat training course at the Marine Corps Base at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

During the six-week course, he received classroom instruction and participated in field exercises involving infantry tactics, the construction and camouflage of fighting positions and the use of mines, demolitions and intra-company communications equipment. His specialized training centered on the operation, employment and maintenance of 60mm and 81mm mortars.

Navy Machinist's Mate 3.c. Larry D. Young, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Young of Quirk Road, Belleville, has completed the Basic Machinist's Mate Course.

During the course at the Naval Training Center at Great Lakes, Ill., he received instruction on the use of hand tools and machine shop equipment. In addition, he studied the basic operation, maintenance and repair of ships' propulsion equipment, evaporators and generators. The students were also introduced to the types of duty watches that Machinist's Mates stand aboard ships.

A 1976 graduate of Belleville High School, he joined the Navy in September 1977.

Navy Seaman David H. Adams, the son of Joseph R. Adams of Hull Road, Belleville, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center at Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in his studies were seamanship, close-order drill, Naval history and first aid.

He joined the Navy in January 1978.

Navy Electronics Technician 2.c. Richard A. Browning, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilburn Browning of Van Born Road, Romulus, is participating in exercise "Comtux 2-78" in the Atlantic Ocean and Caribbean Sea.

He is serving as a crewmember aboard the frigate USS Patterson, homeported in Mayport, Fla.

"Comtux 2-78" is a 21-day exercise involving more than 4,000 personnel and 12 U.S. Atlantic Fleet ships, a Coast Guard cutter and two French destroyers. It is designed to improve the overall readiness of participants and to enhance command and control procedures at sea. Training encompasses all phases of naval operations, including antisubmarine, anti-air and electronic warfare, plus gunnery and missile firing tactics.

Browning joined the Navy in June 1975.

Navy Chief Machinist's Mate Rodney D. Everage, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel B. Everage of Belleville, is assigned to the Navy's newest ship.

He is serving as a crewmember aboard the nuclear-powered submarine USS Omaha which was commissioned March 11 at Groton, Conn.

Manned by 127 officers and enlisted men, Omaha is 360 feet long, displaces 6,900 tons and can travel at speeds faster than 20 knots while submerged. She is designed primarily for antisubmarine operations and is capable of operating covertly in enemy waters. Armament includes four 21-inch torpedo tubes and antisubmarine rocket launchers.

Omaha is the fifth ship of her class and third to bear the name of the city Omaha. She will be homeported in Groton, Conn.

Paperwork: Must for full protection under Medicare

(This is reprinted as a public service by Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan, with permission of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Indiana.)

(SECOND IN A SERIES)

Nobody likes to fill out forms — especially those with lots of little blocks, boxes and lines for information you have to supply.

Sometimes paperwork is involved in getting your full protection under Medicare — especially if you want to get your money back.

Medicare claims forms often cause headaches . . . for Medicare patients . . . for doctors and hospitals, and other providers . . . and for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan which serves as a Medicare fiscal intermediary (or paymaster) for the Social Security Administration.

The Medicare claims form might look formidable, but it isn't as difficult as it might seem.

All it takes is some common sense record keeping and a willingness to take the time to fill it out properly. (Your Medicare Handbook is a good reference in case you have some questions).

There are four things that cause most claims problems and hold up prompt payments. They are:

- (1.) Insufficient information as requested on the form;
- (2.) Lack of Medicare Health Insurance Claims number;
- (3.) Claims filings for non-covered items; and
- (4.) Lack of signature.

The Request for Medicare Payment (SSA Form 1490) is filed only for coverages under your Medicare B (medical) insurance with the government. All Medicare A (hospitalization) claims are filed by the participating providers.

Your main concerns under Medicare B (medical) coverage are whether or not your physician was accepting assignment in your case and obtaining proper documentation for claims filings in case he doesn't.

If he does accept Medicare "assignment" — that means he will handle your case for the amount allowed for his services — your job is simple. The physician will fill out the form, you sign it, and he then sends it to Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan for review and payment.

In this case, your physician or provider will receive 80 percent of the amounts payable for his services from the government, and you will be responsible for paying the remaining 20 percent of the bill. If your doctor does accept "assignment", he cannot charge you more than 20 percent of the allowances approved by Medicare, provided you already have paid out your $60 deductible.

If you haven't paid out that deductible, he may charge you more — but not any more than your $60 deductible, plus the 20 percent.

If your doctor won't accept the Medicare assignment, oftentimes, he will agree to file the claim form for you. If he will not file the claim form, you need to obtain the required information.

The claim form is specific in the information requested. You need the date and place of each service, a listing or description of the services performed and a description of the illness or injury for which you were treated. Obviously, you also will have to list the charges. Don't worry about the procedure code, the people at Blue Cross and Blue Shield will take care of that.

There are two ways to get this information (1) ask the doctor or provider to fill out the lower portion of the claim so that you can file it for reimbursement, or (2) request an itemized billing showing all of the needed information.

In either case, you should file the claim with Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan as you receive the services. Do not hold bills and file at year's end.

There is one exception to the above statement — those persons covered by the railroad retirement program file their Medicare Part B claims with the Travelers Insurance Companies, located in Lansing, Ill., which are the area carrier for persons protected by the railroad retirement plan.

Next, make sure you have provided all of the requested information and make sure you sign the claim and include that all-important Medicare insurance claims identification number. Many claims payments are held up just because a Medicare patient didn't sign his name or include that number.

File your claim for only those services covered under Medicare. Admittedly, this sometimes is difficult but your doctor's office staff can help you if you ask them to use an asterisk or underlining to mark covered services when they present you with the bill.

Use your Medicare handbook for a reference and check with either your local Social Security Administration office or the nearest Blue Cross and Blue Shield branch office for assistance.

Medicare Part B won't make any payments until after your record shows that you have paid out that $60 year deductible for covered services.

The name of the game in filing Medicare claims forms is keeping a record of your expenditures and also keeping a record of when you have filed the claims. After all, it's your money.

Next: Medicare Part A (Hospitalization)

Control plant disease

For healthier plants and better yields, control diseases in raspberry and strawberry plants before they flower in the spring.

According to Don Ramsdell, extension specialist in small fruit crop diseases at Michigan State University, grey mold, strawberry leaf scorch and strawberry leaf spot are the three most common fungus diseases of small fruits.

Grey mold affects both flowers and fruits, Ramsdell says. He advises spraying plants five times with Captan and Benlate at 7- to 10-day intervals starting at the very beginning of bloom.

Captan and Benlate together also control strawberry leaf scorch and strawberry leaf spot. Follow the same schedule of application for scorch. For leaf spot, administer one additional spray after harvest.

Of the most common varieties of strawberries — mid-way, red chief, guardian, sparkle and sure-crop — none resists grey mold, strawberry leaf scorch or strawberry leaf spot, Ramsdell said. However, mid-way and guardian are resistant to verticillium wilt, a common soil-borne disease which infects roots, blocking water transport and causing plants to wilt.

Another soil-borne disease is black root rot. Extremely cold winters aggravate the disease by damaging plant roots. No resistant varieties are known. Commercial fruit growers fumigate to control this problem, but this is not practical for the backyard grower.

Don't let all this talk of disease discourage you. A little care now will mean luscious fruit in a few months.

Wayne sweeps two from Salem

Canfield shuts out Plymouth with 3-hitter in opener

The euphoria didn't last long for Plymouth Salem and head baseball coach Brian Gillies who beat defending Suburban 8 Conference champ, Livonia Bentley, 13-3, last week then dropped both ends of a doubleheader to Wayne Memorial Saturday.

Gillies labeled his team's performance against Wayne "as the worst in my 11 years as a coach." Salem was charged with eight errors in the two games and managed to get only three hits off of Wayne's ace southpaw, Jim Canfield, who blanked the Rocks 4-0 in the opener. Canfield, spurred by 11 strikeouts, walked only one and gave up three harmless singles - one each to Matt Etienne, Bob Waite and Bruce Piper.

Losing pitcher Doug Holloway went five innings, was touched for four hits, fanned four and didn't walk any before departing from the mound. Piper finished up.

Wayne got on the scoreboard with single runs in the third, fifth, sixth and seventh innings. Singles by Mark Zerona and Bob Nutt, a sacrifice by Wes Scott and an error produced Wayne's first run. In the fifth Zerona again singled, then Nutt singled him to third and Mark scored on Scott's sacrifice fly. Greg Stano walked in the sixth, then made it to third after Mark Korte fanned but reached third on an error. A second error scored Stano. Larry Vojtkofsky's single drove in Nutt who walked, advanced to second on Scott's base hit to account for Wayne's seventh inning run.

In the nightcap, Mark Solarz went four innings and gave up seven hits to deliver an 8-5 victory into Wayne victory column. Salem scored two runs in the second, added two more in the fourth and picked up a run in the fifth.

A 325-foot homer by Sam Merrill with Doug Holloway aboard tied the game at 2-all, but Wayne came back and scored one in the third, three in the fourth and two in sixth to pull it out.

Salem belted Solarz with a two-run roundtripper in the fourth, this time with Piper clobbering a fastball over the left field fence (365 feet) with Dave Wilcox aboard.

Salem hurler John Holdsworth lasted 3 2-3 innings, struck out three and walked four. He was charged with five earned runs.

Meanwhile Rich Porter had a perfect day at the plate as he connected for four-for-four, including a double and two RBI's. Teammate Vojtkofsky got a two-run homer in the first inning with Dave Freeborn aboard. Freeborn led off the game

A Wayne Marathon?

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

Venturesome Ken McKee was in Boston during the running of the famous marathon and came away impressed and with some notable ponderables.

"Why not a Wayne Marathon?" asked McKee, who was a three-sports man during his prep years at Wayne High and is presently serving the city as a councilman. "The Boston race was and is fantastic; it shows people with a lot of determination and stamina and I am determined to run in it next year."

"And moreover I feel it would be a wonderful idea if we could organize a marathon in conjunction with our Summer Festival." For the uninitiated, the marathon involves running a distance of 26 miles and some odd yards. They say if the 26 miles don't get you, the yards inevitably will.

McKee was in Boston last Monday to watch his younger brother, Dave, compete in the race. Dave, who presently has established his home in Oregon was one of 4,000-plus runners in this year's race. He managed to finish.

"Dave got me hooked on running," says Ken. "When Dave was in high school (Wayne Memorial) he was about 5'8" and weighed nearly 200-pounds. He's now down to 145 pounds."

Showing the notches on his belt have now been buckled inward, Ken said that since he has taken up running he has trimmed from 243 pounds to 202.

"I've lost over 41 pounds in nine weeks and that's why I'm sold on endurance running," McKee pointed out.

At 38, Ken is moving among the ranks of geriatric wonders like Gordie Howe and Carl Yastrzemski. McKee plays hockey, softball and runs at least five miles a day.

"People nowadays are beginning to realize that running is the perfect exercise," McKee contends. "They are running for their health. Like a few decades ago it was golf, then tennis and now it's running."

To cash in on the popularity of the endurance runner, McKee says he and his brother, Dave, have teamed with an insurance agent and doctor to form a partnership in a sports shoppe, "The Runner's Roost", which specifically serves the needs of runners.

"It's a sports' shop that is stocked with what a runner needs like shorts, gym shoes and jogging uniforms," said McKee. "Running gear is the 'in' thing."

McKee points out that in golf one has to pay money to get on the golf course and in tennis it's the same situation for the courts, "but in running it's a self determination to get up and go out into the clean air and set your pace."

A manufacturer's rep, Ken can easily sell and make his point.

Wonder who'll he have to sell to get the Wayne marathon off the drawing boards?

And let's wrap up the week with this letter from Ron Hayes, vice-president of the Wayne-Westland Over 30 Hockey League.

DEAR MR. MOORADIAN,

On behalf of the Wayne-Westland Over 30 Hockey League I would like to thank the Associated Newspapers and you for the excellent coverage we received during the recently concluded season.

I can sincerely say that our players looked forward to the weekly coverage and took pride in the stories the newspaper printed for them. You have helped make the year a success.

You also helped make the annual Red Wing Oldtimer Game a success and we would like to say, "Thank You."

Ron Hays, vice president

Keeping Rockets on his radar range

Livonia Franklin's Wally Niemiec, running third here, is getting ready to move on Westland John Glenn's Paul Stephens (in the lead) and sophomore Jim Kanclerz who set the early pace in the 2-mile run during the Northwest Suburban Conference confrontation. Niemiec took command later and spun a 10:05.8 to finish first for Coach Bob Holmes' Patriots who also won the meet.

Frayer: 'Didn't get a solid hit'

Churchill decked by Western in conference opener, 3-1

Sometimes one should listen to Mother Nature, especially if one is on the losing side.

With most of the prep ball clubs sidelined because of inclement weather, Livonia Churchill and Walled Lake Western decided to go ahead with their scheduled Western Six Conference baseball opener.

Unfortunately, Churchill's deft fielding couldn't offset the erratic hitting and pitching. Consequently the Livonians came out on the shortend of a 3-1 count.

"We played a good ball game," said Frayer, "however, they made their hits count where we didn't. There wasn't a good solid hit on either side and I would have to say that the cold weather was the blame for that."

Churchill got on the scoreboard first, tallying in the second inning thanks to the alert base-running by Mike Devlin who singled to open the inning, got to second on a sacrifice and reached third on an error, then Mark Williams singled him home.

Dave Krick got the only other base hit off of winning pitcher Todd Galich who struck out one, walked two and gave up three hits.

Frayer started Jeff Morris on the mound and he worked 4 2-3 innings. Morris was yanked after giving up three runs and six of the seven hits. Reliever Matt Krakowiak finished up.

Plymouth Canton, Waterford Mott and Western all won their league openers, while Harrison and Northville joined Churchill in the losing column.

Earlier Churchill buried Highland Park 6-1 behind sophomore righthander Dick Medrea's three-hit pitching performance. Medrea handcuffed the Parkers for the first four innings, then Mike Talovich finished up.

Churchill put the game away in the bottom of the second with a five-run burst after Highland Park took a 1-0 lead in that inning. The Chargers sent 10 batters to the plate as Steve Raymond ignited the rally with a triple and scored on the centerfielder's error.

Todd Gariner then singled to center off of losing pitcher Tony Lampkin and Williams sacrificed. Both runners were safe when the pitcher threw the ball away, Gardiner scoring and Williams going all the way to third.

Marty Abraham grounded out with Williams scoring. The Chargers continued their assault on Lampkin as Krick doubled and scored on Bob Campbell's single. After Campbell stole second, Chris Clegg walked and Devlin came through with a single to left, scoring the fifth run in the inning.

Dave Colley walked and eventually scored thanks to a pair of errors to account for Churchill's sixth inning run.

Churchill entertained Farmington Harrison on Wednesday and will travel to Garden City West on Friday for a nonleague game against the Tigers.

Field events turn tide for Patriots

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

Buyed by winning performances from their discus and pole vault teams, Livonia Franklin captured its first and the 13th annual Dearborn Elks Relays held at Westland John Glenn Saturday.

Coach Bob Holmes' undefeated Patriots put to good use their resourcefulness to upset defending champ, Dearborn, which had won 10 of the 13 championships.

Dearborn's rueful awaking occurred after the running events had been completed. Franklin managed to compile 14 points from the winning performances of its pole vault team made up of Dave Kmet, Bruce Denapoli and Pat McDonald whose combined efforts totaled 37 feet. The discus team of Don Boka, Kevin Eddy and Chuck Heil placed first with a combined performance of 408 feet.

The Livonians eventually wound up with 47 points, four more than Bishop Borgess and 16 points more than the defending champs.

Trailing the leaders, in order, were: Livonia Stevenson (28), Dondero (27), Westland John Glenn (24), Garden City West (15), Hazel Park (8), Walled Lake Western (6), Taylor Truman (2), Detroit Catholic Central (2), and Cherry Hill (1).

"We have been competing in this invitational for 13 years," said an elated Holmes after the meet, "and this is the first time we have won it. Obviously I'm very pleased and happy about the outcome."

The 12 teams also got a break in the weather as temperatures reached above the 60 degree mark on Saturday.

Franklin also won the long jump relay with the efforts of Dave Bowen, Tim Grady and Bob McFarlane whose combined efforts totaled 58 feet, 8 inches.

Westland John Glenn was represented in the winner's circle by its high jump team of Brad Jennings, Paul Langlois and Randy Gabrys who topped the field with a combined 18 foot effort.

There were five new highs set in the meet with records falling in the discus, distance medley, shot put, high hurdles shuttle and low hurdles shuttle. The latter two events are new to the program.

The relays are sponsored by the Dearborn Elks' Club which supplied medals and trophies for the winning contestants.

Meanwhile, Franklin established itself as the "team to beat" in the Northwest Suburban Conference last Thursday by coasting past Glenn, 98-60. The Patriots took 12 of the 16 events with Bowen picking up a double victory.

Bowen was the top long jumper (19'2") and also churned a 52.4 in winning the quarter mile.

Tiger title hysteria-- this week will tell!

Belleville baseball coach Dan Fisher doesn't like to look at a weather forecast for good reason. His Tigers were sidelined last week and face the possibility of playing five games this week.

"I don't know if this will take the momentum out of our team," said Fisher whose club has won its first two ball games. "But it will sure tell us what kind of pitching staff we have."

last week, the title is up for grabs. And Belleville, discarded as "too inexperienced for the title bout, could emerge from the battle as the team of destiny.

However, this week obviously will tell the Tiger skipper just where he stands. Belleville has four league games in a span of five days, starting off with Plymouth Salem (Monday), Trenton (Tuesday), at Edsel Ford (Wednesday), at Ypsilanti on Thursday (nonleague), and ending at Redford Union on Friday.

CLIFTON JOHNSON

Johnson wins state mat title

Clifton Johnson has been wrestling competitively for only two years, but the 13-year-old Stevenson Junior High student has already carved out a name for himself.

Competing for the Wolverine Wrestling Club, Johnson won the state title at 55-pounds in the state tournament held at Grand Blanc.

The pride of the Titans

University of Detroit senior center Terry Tyler (left) brought the 500-person crowd attending the Annual Titan Basketball Banquet at the Plaza Hotel to a standing ovation when he gave his Co-Most Valuable Player Award to fellow senior and co-captain Kevin Kaseta (Livonia-Franklin). The Detroit Northwestern product, on many All-American teams this past season and in the Aloha Classic earlier in April, gave the award to his road trip roommate because "I felt Kevin was cheated out of a season of playing when he had surgery as a junior after five games." The presentation of that award capped and eventful evening and the pair admired the trophy together as the Titan supporters applauded enthusiastically.

Wayne gals pass first track title defense test

Wayne launched the defense of its Great Lakes 8 Conference girls' track and field title last Thursday with a lopsided 93-42 victory over Fordson.

Coach Floyd Carter's Zebras swept all 14 events to chalk up their second win in three starts this season.

"Despite the cold and inclement weather," Carter pointed out, "the girls turned in some excellent results. We took all 14 first places."

Lisa Nibert, Kathy Weyand, and Pat Reighard accounted for two individual first places for the winners. Miss Nibert cleared 5 feet, 2 inches in the high jump and also leaped 16 feet, 1 1/2 to top the long jumpers.

Meanwhile, Weyand was clocked in 12:54 in winning the 2-mile run, and came back with a respectable 6:20 to finish first in the mile run.

Reighard and Rose Brielman of Fordson had identical times in the 100-yard dash at 12.7, but the officials gave the nod to the Wayne sprinter who won the photo finish. Miss Reighard also ruled the 220-yard run with a 29.5 finish, besting another Fordson runner by four-tenths of a second.

Rockets' depth sinks Franklin, 76-59

Though they split evenly in the number of first places, Westland John Glenn had just too much depth for Livonia Franklin and won its Northwest Suburban Conference girls' meet, 76-59.

Both teams had seven firsts, but the Westlanders picked up more third places than their league rivals. The Westlanders also received an outstanding performance from Kathy McDougall who leaped 15 feet, 11 1/2 inches in the long jump and was clocked in the winning time of 28 seconds for the 220-yard dash.

Belleville to host WW track and field relays

With one stroke Livonia Franklin and Coach Bob Holmes have set themselves up as the team to watch and beat at the 19th annual Western Wayne Relays.

The relays will be held Tuesday at Belleville High School beginning at 3:30 p.m. with the field events. The running events are scheduled to get underway at 6:30 p.m.

Franklin is undefeated and is coming off of an impressive victory at the Dearborn Elks Relays.

"I would have to give them the nod (Franklin) as the favorite," said Harry Hildenfelter, Belleville Athletic Director who, along with Don Domke, John Glenn AD, were the originators of the relays.

"But let me add that there are a lot of teams in this meet that could win it," Hildenfelter continued. "Our concept when we first organized this meet was to put together an invitational where the schools would have to have a lot of numbers as well as talent."

"Therefore, the team that wins will also have to have a lot of depth," Hildenfelter said.

Teams that have accepted the invitation to compete include Livonia Churchill, the defending champ, Wayne, John Glenn, Inkster, Romulus, Cherry Hill, Garden City East, Garden City West, Livonia Bentley, Taylor Center, Truman and Kennedy, Dearborn Heights Robichaud and the host, Belleville.

There is a $1 admission charge. Meanwhile, Belleville had its problems on the track and off against Suburban 8 Conference rivals, Plymouth Salem last Thursday.

Salem garnered an 88-70 victory, claiming 10 of 16 events. However, the Tigers didn't have in their lineup Chris Koger who somehow managed to miss the bus for Salem, and also missing was Dexter Hubbard who wasn't in school last Thursday, therefore, was ineligible to compete. (Michigan High School Athletic Association rules stipulate an athlete must attend school the day of competition.)

Hubbard is an excellent hurdler, while Koger has already earned national recognition as a high jumper. Earlier, in indoor competition, he cleared 6'8" at the Eastern Michigan University Huron Relays.

Meet results: Plymouth Salem 94 1/2, Belleville 62 1/2

Wayne, Fordson in 'dead heat'

There were many events where Coach Ernie Righetti could point to and say, "if we had just done this or that, we would have won the meet."

But it wasn't to be and Righetti and Wayne's thindads were forced to settle for a 77-all tie with Great Lakes 8 Conference rival, Fordson. (And what was that that the great Duffy Dougherty used to say about ties?)

"I feel that we really won the meet," said Righetti whose Zebras are sporting a 1-1-1 won-lost-tied record after their latest plight. We were disqualified in the 880-yard relay because one of the runners received the baton about a half-step too early in the zone and I'm confident that we could have beaten them in that event.

"Also, there was a jump-off in the high jump which we lost," Righetti continued. "There were many events where if we would have gotten that little extra effort, the meet would have been ours."

It was also the first time in Righetti's coaching career that he had been involved in a tie-decision. The two teams also split evenly (seven apiece) the first places with distance runner Rick Blaha accounting for two of the victories.

Blaha, a senior, is setting the pace in the two mile and toured the distance last Thursday in a fast 9:46.8. Close on Blaha's heels was teammate Doug Tolson whose 9:47.5 established a Wayne sophomore record.

Blaha and Tolson also collaborated on a 1-2 finish in the mile run. Blaha crossed the finish line first with a 4:35.2 showing and Tolson was clocked in 4:42.0.

in trouble in the second inning when Bentley got back two runs, but was in control in the fourth. Gillies brought in reliever Barry Owens for two innings and Holdsworth finished up.

Piper notched four strikeouts, walked none and gave up two runs, one of which was earned.

In that explosive third, Holloway slashed a grand slam homer, his first ever. That inning started off with Matt Etienne working losing pitcher Jim Ross, who had a 7-1 record a year ago, for a walk, Waite and Dave Wilson then singled, Joe Goodsir walked, forcing in a run. That brought up Holloway who connected for the grand slam, a line shot which went 375 feet.

Piper fanned, but Mike Michalek kept things buzzing with a base hit. After Sam Merrill grounded out, Etienne, up for the second time, walked then Waite uncorked a two-run double.

Waite finished the game with three for three, plus a double and two RBIs, while Wilcox chipped in with two hits and Holloway had a sixth inning sixth to go along with the four-run homer.

Salem has a busy week ahead as the Rocks have Trenton on Thursday to worry about, Northville on Friday and host Livonia Franklin for a doubleheader on Saturday.

Wayne, thanks to Porter's three-hit pitching performance, evened up its Great Lakes 8 Conference record at 1-1 at the expense of Fordson.

Porter shut out the Tractors 4-0 as the senior righthander fanned six and walked one. His teammates staked him to one run in the third on a single by Layton who drove in Zerna. Zerna was safe on an error, advanced to second via a stolen base and went to third on a wild pitch.

The Zebras got some insurance runs on the board in the fourth and sixth frames. In the fourth, Canfield cracked a lead off single but Coach Jim Chronowski selected to use pinrunner Skip Walker on the paths. Walker was sacrificed to second by Nutt and went to third on Vojtkofsky's fly ball. He scored on Korte's two-out single.

In the sixth Vojtkofsky doubled and made it to third on a wild pitch. Zerna walked and then proceeded to steal second and both runners scored when Jerry Smart latched out to a single.

Layton touched losing pitcher Bill Cibulka for three of the Zebras' eight hits.

Canfield turned in a sterling performance last week against Grand Ledge, the defending Class A state champ. The senior hurler notched 15 strikeouts, and was working on a no-hitter until two-away in the sixth when he gave up his first hit but went on to beat the champs, 6-3.

The game was held at Eastern Michigan University.

Wayne took a 5-3 record into this week's action.

Flop and over

There wasn't much to cheer about for John Glenn track fans who sat through the cold and rains to watch the Westlanders lose to Livonia Franklin last Thursday. But the Rockets managed to win one of four events, including the high jump. Above, Glenn's Brad Jennings uses the popular 'flop' to clear 5 feet, 9 inches, the winning height.

In track & field

Ypsi stands in Romulus way of what may be perfect year

Romulus runs up against an "iffy" situation on Thursday which could tell head track Coach Al Wilkerson if (there's that word) the Eagles can go undefeated in 1978.

With their second dual meet safely tucked away at the expense of Garden City East (85½-72½), the Eagles will face a strong Ypsilanti contingent at Shadford Stadium.

And here's the "if"...

"If we can get past Ypsilanti," said Wilkerson, "I feel we have a good opportunity to post a perfect season."

Ironically one of the stumbling blocks against Ypsilanti will be one of the athletes who Wilkerson trained, Duane Lee, an excellent hurdler who can long jump as well, is in the Ypsi lineup. Lee transferred to the other school when the voters in Romulus turned down a millage levy last year. (They subsequently approved the mills).

Last year the Eagles dropped a two-point decision to the Braves.

PH&R contest deadline set

Local competition in Pitch, Hit & Run, major league baseball's official youth program will be held in 19 Michigan locations, it was announced today by John Greenslit, executive director of Michigan Parks and Recreation.

Greenslit's organization is affiliated with the National Recreation and Park Association, which is co-sponsoring PH&R with the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports and the Thom McAn Shoe Co.

Boys and girls, ages 9 to 12, may register for Pitch, Hit & Run at any Thom McAn store or participating dealer. They also can register at recreation centers holding the PH&R competitions.

Each registrant will receive a participant's souvenir patch and a free Tips Book of baseball instruction. There is no charge for registration and

One hump or two?

America's first camel race took place in Agricultural Park, Sacramento, Cal., on April 7, 1864. History does not record who, if anyone, was the winner. The camel was brought America in 1856 as part of an experiment in using the dromedary for desert travel. It never replaced the horse. Twentieth century visitors to Greenfield Village in Dearborn, Mich., have an opportunity to relive some of the early modes of travel in America. While there are no camels, there are horse-drawn carriage and surrey, a paddlewheel steamboat and Ford Model T rides.

Who cares about crazy weather!

Spartans raising a ruckus

With young ball players, sophists will tell you, anything can happen. And Cherry Hill Coach Ken Mientkiewicz' young Spartans are making things happen this year.

The Spartans unloaded 15 hits to chase Schafer starter Joe Walsh in the third inning and went on to win their Tri-River Conference baseball opener 10-7 last week.

It was the only game that Cherry Hill managed to play as rains and cold weather erased the rest of the schedule for the week.

A sterling pitching performance by starter Rick Searcy who worked the first five and two-thirds innings, struck out six and walked four highlighted Cherry Hill's league debut.

Searcy gave way to Mark Buck who finished up.

"I have been commending our pitchers," said Mientkiewicz, after the team's fifth straight win, "but our hitters and fielding have also come up with superlative efforts."

Cherry Hill was scheduled to return to the league campaign Monday as host to Riverside, engages Melvindale on Tuesday and plays defending champ, Taylor Kennedy on Wednesday - but rains were forecasted for the earlier part of the week and inclement weather could botch up more than just the schedule.

"We've got things going for us and I hope the weather doesn't take the wind out of our sails."

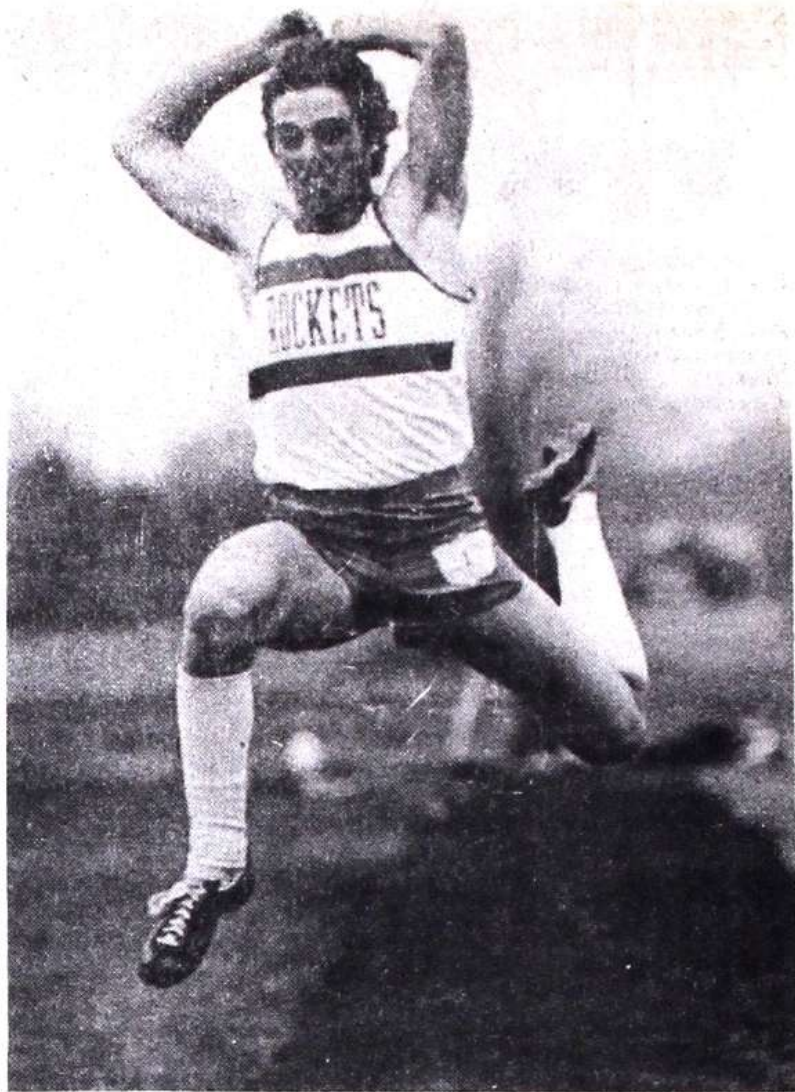

Cherry Hill got on the scoreboard in the opening inning when, with one-away, Tim Hoffer singled and Buck decked a Walsh fastball for a two-run homer over the leftfielder's head. Then, in the second inning, the Spartans made it a 3-0 ball game as Searcy walked with one-away, stole second, advanced to third on a balk and scored on an error.

In the third Don Boren led off with a single, stole second and was chased home by Larry Baker's single. Searcy followed with a three-bagger, scoring Baker.

It was 7-0 after four innings as Mike Doyle doubled home Ron Sosnowski who had singled. Doyle proceeded to steal second and third and scored on the catcher's throwing error. The Spartans then put a run on the board in the fifth thanks to Baker's led off single, Searcy's base hit and Mark Friar's single. They wrapped it up with a two-run spurt in the sixth as Doyle walked, Boren singled him to third and Baker singled home Doyle, Boren stopping at third. He scored on Searcy's sacrifice fly.

Buck's first HR and a single produced three RBI's, while Searcy had a perfect 2 for 2 at the plate and both Sosnowski, Doyle and Boren finished with two hits apiece.

Trying hard

If the cliché that those who finish second best try harder, then Westland John Glenn's Ed Hamel (above) falls in that category. Hamel leaped 18 feet, 9 inches but finished behind Livonia Franklin's Dave Bowen in last Thursday's confrontation. Bowen's winning leap was 19 feet, 2 inches and he helped the Patriots win the Northwest Suburban Conference opener and set up Coach Bob Holmes' squad as the "team to beat in the league".

Nibert finds new dimension as U.S. cage team member

To take part in international competition representing one's own country is a dream few athletes ever realize. For Albion College's John Nibert, former Wayne Memorial cage star, an amazing season was capped by that dream come true.

Nibert, a 6-5 junior pivotman from Westland, was one of 16 players selected from NCAA Divisions II and III to play for a United States All-Star team in Mexico City recently (April 8-11). The co-MVP of the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association performed well during the trip, averaging eight points per game while helping the U.S. Contingent to four wins over Mexico teams.

The graduate of Wayne Memorial led the Britons to a 21-6 record, a co-championship in the NIAA and a third place finish at the Division III finals in 1978. He averaged 18.9 points and 10.2 rebounds per game. But while leading the Albion squad was one thing, Nibert found something new to lead in Mexico City.

"I got to teach at a basketball clinic down there for two days," he said. "It was something I'd never done before. I really got a kick out of that."

Most all-star teams have a tendency to lack cohesiveness, but Nibert reflected that playing with the American squad was almost like playing with his own team.

"Our whole team got along really well," John said. "We had a little trouble adjusting to the altitude the first few days when we were having two-a-day practices, but when we played, it was as if we had played together all season long."

John said the trip made some of the routine things about basketball exciting again.

"The first basket I scored was really a big thrill, and being a starter in one game was really great, too. I got to play forward, and that was really a change for me, but I had fun. I even got to make a few steals."

"I always wanted to play in front of really large crowds, and they filled the Olympic Stadium every game," he continued. "They 'the Mexican fans' didn't really like us the first game, but they really came to like us after a while and enjoyed the way we played basketball."

And oh, did they ever put on a show.

The American squad literally cruised to four victories over the University of Mexico, Monterrey Tech and the national champ, the University of Chihuahua. The fourth win was over a Mexican All-Star contingent. The U.S. team won every game by at least 20 points, including a 124-58 decision over the University of Mexico in the opening game.

"I'd say that John did quite a job for us," commented Dan McCarrell, coach of the Division III titlist North Park who was one of the two coaches on the American team. "He hustled and rebounded well. John fit right in with the other players on the team, and held his own quite well. I think this team could play against anyone."

McCarrell's last comment was something that both Nibert and Albion cage Coach Mike Turner brought up. That college division basketball is for real.

"I think we proved in Mexico that the small schools can represent the United States in international competition very well," Nibert said. "Small college ball means not only can you go to school and get a good education, but that you can also play basketball, and some of these guys can really play basketball."

"It really added some credence to the fact that college division basketball players are not only good students, but that they can play some great basketball," Turner said. "I think that's evident from the way they played in Mexico. Being a part of that team was a great experience for John. He was very deserving of the honor, and I'm happy for him."

Spartans muzzle Melvindale

If fans want graphic proof that Cherry Hill and Coach Joe Gralsey are dead serious about retaining the Tri-River Conference track & field championship, and for the fourth time at that, take a look at what the Spartans did to Melvindale last Thursday.

Cherry Hill muzzled Melvindale 131-21, handing the Cardinals their worst track defeat in the conference in nearly a decade.

But that wasn't the only upbeat news for Gralsey and the Spartans. Injured Ramona Lara returned to the line-up and ran a 10:07 two-mile in exhibition.

To keep your car rolling merrily along, take good care of it. One thing to remember is to warm it up gently. Don't race the motor and go barging off from a cold start at 60 miles an hour. Start out slow and easy - it helps to know that oil drains away from metal surfaces after a car has been sitting around for a few hours. The oil film that prevents friction is reduced and parts wear out faster. So budget extra time, let your motor run at a fast idle until it's warm. Then accelerate at a steady, smooth rate. Away you go with your car that will last longer and behave better.

Give your car a Spring tune-up with parts and accessories from KOSIN'S AUTO PARTS, 26831 Michigan Ave., Inkster! We carry everything your foreign or domestic car needs and our experienced staff are always happy to help you select the parts that are right for the job you want to do. We also feature a full machine shop service where skilled mechanics tackle the most challenging engine repair problems. Our service is fast, efficient and reasonably priced. Call KOSIN'S at 563-3894. We are open daily from 8 A.M. until 8 P.M., and on Saturdays until 5 P.M. Bank Americard and Master Charge are honored.

Helpful Hint: If you drive a manual transmission car, don't ride the clutch. It's not a place to rest your foot and wears out fast.

no purchase is required. Registration will close May 13 and local competitions will be held the week of May 15.

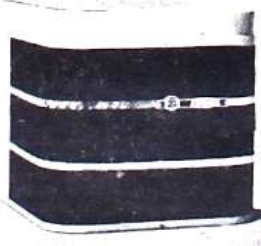

Local winners will advance to district competition the weekend of June 3-4 and division trials will follow June 13-17 with one of the division events at Tiger Stadium on June 23.

Eight finalists, top two from each of four age categories, will meet at the All-Star Game at San Diego, July 11, with the youngsters and their parents guests of the Thom McAn company and major league baseball.

Westland Parks and Recreation officials announced this week that the local phase of the contest will be held on Saturday, May 20, beginning at 9 a.m. in Jaycees' Park.

In case of rain, officials said, the competitions will take place on Sunday, May 21 beginning at 1 p.m.

Injury nearly ends Spartan catcher's career

Five years ago it looked as though Rob Dunsmore's baseball would consist of the television game of the week, Topps bubble gum cards, and memories of what could have been. But as the former Cherry Hill three-sports athlete prepares to close out his baseball career at Nicholls State University in Louisiana, the dreams of success on the diamond that raced through his head while lying on a lonely operating table have become a reality.

The Colonels' catcher, who at one time not so very long ago, would have been thankful if he ever walked again, is now one of the mainstays of Nicholls' baseball team that is fighting for its seventh consecutive Gulf South Conference Western Division title.

"He's the kind of guy you're proud to see in your program for a 4-year period, because when it came down to his senior year he has produced and done the job for the ball club," praised Nicholls' Coach T. C. Calmes.

But Dunsmore almost didn't have a senior year as a college catcher. In fact, five years ago there was considerable doubt that he would ever be able to participate in sports.

During his junior year of high school at Cherry Hill, Dunsmore was involved in what appeared to be a minor car accident. No one realized the agony that was about to unfold. He continued to play baseball, basketball and football at Patterson High the rest of the year. As his senior year began, Dunsmore's knee grew progressively worse. Surgery seemed to be the answer, but Dunsmore would have no part of it in his senior year of high school ball. So he endured the pain and received shots instead.

For the next three seasons Dunsmore labored behind an extremely talented catcher in Mike Mulligan. Dunsmore played the role of the backup catcher, and generally filled the holes Coach Calmes made available.

"In high school I had been head noncho, you know, Mr. baseball, football and basketball. Coming here I had to sit the bench three years just waiting for my chance. To me that's the hardest thing I've ever done," Dunsmore confided.

Finally, after years of uncertainty, the waiting has paid off for the Colonels and for the scrappy Dunsmore. "The biggest question in my mind when the season started was how could a guy that hadn't started for three years provide leadership," Dunsmore said. "But the best thing that happened to me this year was I got off to a good start. When you're hitting the ball everything is going good for you, it's easy to say to the guys —let's go, let's hustle.

Dunsmore also slugged several early season home runs that helped the Colonels notch some important victories.

"Rob played behind one of the finest catchers in the South for three years and didn't really get a chance to show what he could do," said Calmes. "But he has come on strong this season by working hard, hitting the ball well, and doing a good job as a leader behind the plate."

Besides his thundering bat and his steady performance in the field, Dunsmore's biggest asset is his ability to lead by example. The fiery redhead has that never-say-die attitude and he never stops hustling until the final strike has been called. His experience has also paid big dividends for the young Nicholls' pitching staff. Sitting the bench and heeding the lessons of Mulligan the three previous seasons have turned Dunsmore into a splendid manipulator of pitchers.

"His leadership characteristics are as high as anyone I have ever coached and maybe even higher than most," lauded Calmes. "This has really helped our young ballclub out."

For Rob Dunsmore, life is rosy again. He is playing the sport that paved his road to recovery and he is doing well. Plus, he feels he's finally repaying Nicholls State for the confidence and patience they offered him during those shakey days.

"This year has been an extremely satisfying experience," said Dunsmore. "I'm finally able to give the school back something they gave me. They invested their money in me for four years and I can at least produce something positive in return."

Good news for Romulus: ace hurler may be back

Despite a 6-2 loss to Ann Arbor Huron, there was some good news for Romulus and head baseball coach Dennis Stoh.

Stoh figures with so many rainouts and delays he may still get into his lineup ace hurler Mike Marsiglia who suffered a fractured ankle during sliding practice before the season opener.

"If we can get our senior pitcher into the lineup I'm sure we'll put some victories on the scoreboard. We have a junior ball club and Mike can provide the senior leadership this club needs."

The Eagles dropped their third game in four starts to the senior Huron contingent which struck for a run in the first inning, picked up three more in the second and then increased the margin with single tallies in the fourth and seventh frames.

Romulus got on the board in the bottom of the second as Steve Venier singled, then proceeded to steal second and third and was chased home on Tony Cholette's double.

The Eagles made it a 5-2 ball game in the sixth when Mike Williams walked, went to second on a single by Ayers and raced home when Venier collected his second hit of the day.

Ayers started and went the distance for the Eagles and took his second loss in as many starts. He fanned four and didn't walk any in pitching a 11-hitter.

Bob Kelsey, who worked the first three innings, was given credit for the victory.

Romulus, with two games rained out last week, will try to fit the postponed games in this week. The Eagles were to face Garden City East on Monday (at East), New Boston Huron (Tuesday), at Dearborn Heights Annapolis on Thursday and Clarenceville at home Friday.

Meanwhile, Coach Stoh said he and his team will try to raise some money for the varsity program by selling tickets for the May 10th Detroit Tigers, Cincinnati Reds Benefit Game which is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at Tiger Stadium.

"Sales from these tickets will help finance our program," Stoh said who pointed out that he has $5 reserve seats and $3.50 left field general admission seat tickets available.

Persons or groups who wish to attend the game can contact Coach Stoh at South Junior High at WH 1-2770.

Salem netters slash Glenn's win streak

Plymouth Salem apparently wasn't impressed by the headline last week declaring Westland John Glenn's tennis team "undefeated and among the top clubs in the area."

Salem tarnished the Westlanders' record with a 6-1 victory over Coach Don Aldrich's netters.

"Though the score appears lopsided," said Aldrich, "there were a couple of three-setters in the match and the outcome was closer than indicated. But we did come up short. Salem has an excellent team."

The Salem victory snapped Glenn's five-game winning streak. Glenn however bounced right back and won an abbreviated (by rains) match from Cherry Hill, 4-1, to pad their record to 6-1 on the year.

Aldrich is enthused about his team's prospects of repeating as the Northwest Suburban Conference champs. The Glenn coach was to send his netters up against Thurston on Monday (weather permitting) for their first conference test.

"We won it last year and I feel we're the team to beat," Aldrich said. "But it is a new season."

Wayne gridders seek $$$

Wayne Memorial head football coach Floyd Carter would like to send as many of his players to football camp as possible this summer.

But he'll need help, so the Booster Club has decided to organize a fund-raising night Friday night at 7:30 p.m.

Fans who want to join in the fun and help support the Wayne football program at the same time can do so at the money-raising function at the Wayne Ford Civic League hall on Wayne Rd.

It cost about 50 million extra dollars to keep the power in your hands. Here's why:

Severe weather and a long coal strike forced Detroit Edison to turn to supplementary fuels and power sources to maintain uninterrupted electric service during January, February and March.

If coal had run out, many people might have been put out of work, as in some other states. And a lot of people would have been without electricity during rotating blackouts.

But here in southeastern Michigan, Detroit Edison and the Michigan Public Service Commission felt the higher cost of providing continued electric power to keep factories running and people at work was worth it.

So Detroit Edison stretched coal supplies by burning additional amounts of natural gas and oil — which cost more than twice as much as coal. Detroit Edison had to purchase extra electric power from Canadian sources, as well.

The total cost: about 50 million extra dollars for January, February and March.

The result: higher electric bills in April, May and June.

Not one cent of the increase pays for other costs of providing electricity. Not one cent goes into Detroit Edison's profits.

When considering the alternatives, Detroit Edison hopes you agree that higher electric bills are a reasonable price to pay to have kept the power in your hands.

Remember, you can continue to limit the size of your electric bill by using energy wisely.

John Glenn powerlifters win tourney

It didn't take long for Westland John Glenn to establish itself as one of the top weightlifting teams in the area.

The Westlanders, coached by Jerry Szukaitis, captured the inaugural Michigan High School Powerlifting Tournament held over the weekend at Cherry Hill High School.

"Though weightlifting isn't new to our school," Szukaitis said, "this is the first tournament of its kind that we have competed in and we're elated to have won."

John Glenn compiled 46 points to beat out host, Cherry Hill for the team championship. Cherry Hill had 32, while Millford was third with 15 points.

Dan Hutchinson, representing the Rockets in the 132 pound class, won the individual title in that weight with a squat of 270 pounds, bench press of 210 pounds and dead lift of 405 pounds for a 405 total.

Also first for the Westlanders were Eugene Barrett (148) and Bennett Clemons (198). Barrett's performance of 270-195-405 totaled 870, while Clemons came up with 340-235-530 for 1,105 pounds.

"Dutch treat", when the host expects each guest to pay his own way, stems from the 17th century rivalry between Britain and Holland. It became the practice in Britain to express contempt for something by calling it Dutch. Thus, a cheap alloy of zinc and copper was referred to as Dutch gold. But for real coin just look around your home. You'll find some golden opportunities there to get extra cash. Just make a list of good things you no longer use or enjoy. Then dial 729-3300, the number of Classified Ads. An Ad Writer will help put you in touch with honest to goodness buyers. Do it today!

LEGAL NOTICES

Public Notice
Opportunity for Hearing

All interested persons are hereby advised that the Wayne County Road Commission is proposing the improvement of the Lotz Road bridge over Fellows Creek south of Cherry Hill, the Lotz Road culvert over Barker Drain north of Palmer, and the Van Born Road culvert over Horner Drain west of Belleville Road. The proposed improvements are to replace the structures with ones that will provide 24' wide roadways. These structures will be closed during construction. The Lotz Road structures will not be closed at the same time.

In formation concerning these projects, including preliminary plans and an evaluation of the social, economic, and environmental aspects, is available for public review and copying at the Wayne County Road Commission office at 415 Clifford Street, Detroit, Michigan 48226.

These projects are proposed to receive Federal-Aid under the Urban Safe Off-System Program, and under provisions of Federal Law, any person who would be affected by the proposed improvements may request in writing that a formal Public Hearing be held concerning the social, economic, and environmental effects of these projects. Such a request should be mailed to Mr. Robert A. Larson, Director of Transportation at the above address. This request must be received on or before May 18, 1978.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

"A GOOD LIFE"

Chiropractic Gets Results!

Put an end to suffering. . .

What is it?

Life exists in the human body and uses the brain as its headquarters and power plant. The brain generates powerful life-giving energy sending it down the spinal cord, which is housed by the spinal column or backbone, and out the spinal nerves to all parts of the body. These life-giving nerve impulses supply the energy required by the body to carry on its normal functional activities.

The body can function properly and will be healthy if its nerve channels are free and unobstructed. However, if the flow of this powerful, intelligent nerve force is altered, either in quantity or quality, by physical obstruction or negative mental qualitative interference, disharmony, imperfection and disease are the inevitable results.

Nerve interference is caused when one or more of the 24 movable vertebrae in the spine becomes thrown out of its normal alignment in relation to the vertebra above and below, putting pressure on the nerves that exit through openings in the vertebrae, or directly on the spinal cord. This misalignment is known as a subluxation and is the main source of disease in the human body.

The causes of subluxations are many. Any sudden jar or jerk of the spine can cause nerve interference. Even simple nervous tension can twist and contort the spine, causing interrupted flow of nerve energy. It is necessary for a chiropractor to locate and eliminate these subluxations of the spinal column to allow the life force to flow unobstructed to every part of the body. When this happens, the body will return to a state of good health.

A chiropractor corrects subluxations by exerting gentle pressure on the misaligned bones, causing them to return to their normal position. This exerting of pressure, by hand only, is a spinal adjustment.

While other forms of therapies strive to cover up and treat symptoms such as pain, chiropractic attacks the cause of sickness and disease. Pain is the body's way of letting us know that all is not well. It is a signal that there is a roadblock somewhere between the brain and the body — a restriction of the flow of the vital force that is required for all parts of the body to function normally. Drugs do absolutely nothing to eliminate the cause of disease.

So, if you are about to give up hope and accept pain as a normal condition, consult a chiropractor. He is an expert in his work. His profession has, from its very beginning, advocated spinal adjustments for the restoration of health. His methods are the most advanced of all the healing arts known to man.

. . . So wife decides to try it, too!

Chiropractic worked wonders for my husband so I decided to visit Dr. Gregg to see what could be done for me. Due to an automobile accident, walking was a big problem — I had pains in my legs and feet. My job required me to be on my feet seven hours every day. By the end of the day my legs and feet were masses of aches and pains.

After just four short weeks of chiropractic adjustments my health began to improve. My legs and feet are much better. I have lost some weight and my nerves feel more relaxed. I feel very good now.

I recommend chiropractic care to everybody. If you are suffering, have faith and patience — Dr. Gregg and chiropractic will do the rest.

MILDRED PARQUETTE,

"Recommends Chiropractic for better health"

Dr. Gregg has helped me considerably. I can feel the pressure being relieved from my chest and neck.

I strongly recommend chiropractic for a baby also. My son was helped a great deal. He was an instrument delivered baby and for the first six months he had many problems. After bringing him in to the doctor, his

straightened right out.

"I no longer need drugs!"

When I first came under Dr. Gregg's care on September 15, 1975, I was taking valium and darvon tablets daily for pains in my back and neck.

It took only two weeks for chiropractic to correct my problems. I no longer need drugs. I am very grateful to Dr. Gregg for his help.

great!

Aging units host Power Day May 10

The Detroit-Wayne County Area Agency on Aging will host its fourth annual Senior Power Day on May 10 in Lansing.

This year's event will be sponsored by 14 regional area agencies in the state. Last year it attracted 3,000 seniors, and organizers expect attendance to double this year.

The two main objectives of Senior Power Day will be a show of strength for senior issues and presentation of a platform for action on these matters.

Results of a state-wide survey asking seniors to prioritize their needs and list their most immediate concerns will be announced. The top five issues and needs indicated from this survey will then be presented to Gov. Milliken, House Speaker Bobby Crim and Senate Majority Leader Robert Faust. A panel of seniors will then question these three key political leaders and ask what their plans are to meet the demands and needs of seniors.

At the main meeting in the Lansing Civic Auditorium, the seniors will be seated according to legislative districts, and representative will be steered directly to his or her constituents to talk with them about their specific problems and goals.

Robert Bennet, U.S. Commissioner on Aging will be the keynote speaker of the day. Seniors will also present the final draft of the state senior platform and spend the afternoon discussing the platform and share practical pointers on how to get action from the Michigan legislature.

For further information on Senior Power Day call 983-8800 — Senior Citizen Information and Referral.

AARP 'Social Security' for those over 55

It's billed as "the new social security for people 55 and over" and has a slogan of "10 Years before you can take advantage of this card (Social Security), you can take advantage of this one."

What is it:

It's the card you receive when you join the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), a non-profit, non-partisan and non-governmental organization to which 9 million "vital" Americans belong.

Probably the only organization in the United States that offers people 55 years and older so many different ways to take advantage of their age, residents can join AARP for $3, one year's dues.

As a member of AARP, residents are able to take advantage of publications - Modern Maturity and The AARP News Bulletin - designed specifically for them. The former publication has articles on such subjects as health, food, travel, sports, books, humor, legislation and regular features, while the latter keeps you up to date on national developments and local association activities and provides information of practical value.

Services available through an AARP membership include pharmaceuticals at "realistic prices", tax and consumer aide programs, classroom programs through the Institute of Lifetime Learning, health education and purchase privilege programs, AARP - recommended auto insurance, employment service and life insurance, travel service and health insurance plans.

The only requirement to join AARP is that you be 55 years or older. One membership makes both the member and spouse eligible for all AARP benefits and privileges.

To find out more about AARP write to it at 1909 K St., NW, Washington, D.C.

Westland Convalescant: 'Just plain folks here'

The next best thing to home...

"What are we going to do now?", Pat cried, as she and her husband Tom drove home from the hospital. The doctor had just informed them that Mother Morris was ready to be discharged, and she must go to a nursing home. "You know that we can't take care of Dad... Why, Mother did everything for him, and he is so dependent on her." Mrs. Morris had been taking care of Dad for five years, ever since his stroke... feeding him and dressing him... Fortunately, he could still shuffle about, but needed care.

Mother Morris had fallen over a footstool and broken her hip. The doctors said she was mending well, but right now she was unable to go home and worst of all was unable to help Dad. During her hospital stay, Dad had lived with his son, Tom. Pat wanted to mention how difficult it had been for her with the four children, now having to share the three small bedrooms with granddad and how worried she was in leaving him alone so often.

"Let's visit this list of nursing homes the social worker gave us and see for ourselves."

They came to Westland Convalescent Center, a center for folks just like Mom and Dad Morris. Mrs. Bee Garnett, the assistant administrator showed them around the building. It was a lovely home with its enclosed courts and two open patios. All the rooms surrounded these courts, making each room light and cheerful and facing a view of landscaped gardens or open country.

Tom liked this spot right away and responded with: "The folks always lived in and enjoyed the countryside. They sure would like this view."

Mrs. Garnett then showed the large airy dining rooms, the lounges and the craft room.

"Do you think Mom would play the piano again?" Pat asked. "Or work on her ceramics now? She hasn't had a chance, lately, to do any of those things." The private dining room took Tom's interest. Here the family could all gather and enjoy a dinner party all by themselves. They could use the stove and refrigerator and have a good time together.

"I like the carpeting, too," he remarked. "It's more like home."

Mrs. Garnett explained the nursing stations, the 24-hour supervision and the meals planned by a registered dietician.

"Mother Morris needs the physical therapy, and she could live here with Dad until she recuperates", Tom acknowledged. On the day they visited, the Wayne State School of Nursing students were engaged in clinical work with the residents. Madonna College gerontology students were busy working in craft classes and making visits with the residents.

They spoke with Judith Gilbert, RN, the administrator who was helpful in their decision.

"We urge you to look around the home for yourselves and encourage you to talk to our residents here. We also suggest you visit other facilities before making a decision. We know this isn't home for you, but we make it the next best thing to home."

Pat and Tom were assured by Ms. Gilbert that Mother and Dad Morris would have the best care possible and that Westland Convalescent Center was accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals. Westland Convalescent Center is part of the community and extends itself to the area to sponsor classes and family counseling. And to fill the need of the family who are unable to care for Mom and Dad in their home, Westland Convalescent Center is the next best place.

Ms. Gilbert concluded: "The nursing home is not a hospital, but a place that provides care in a special way. It provides security for families and professional nursing staff to provide the care that cannot be given at home. In addition there are social interests and activities which are the individual's choice. Westland Convalescent Center tries to satisfy the needs for someone who needs the next best thing to being home."

Dial-a-ride

A popular service for area seniors

By MAUREEN CAMPS
ANP Staff Writer

One of the most popular services for seniors to hit the streets of Western Wayne County in recent years has been the dial-a-ride program offered by the Nankin Transit Commission.

The commission is a transportation authority of sorts, linked with the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA).

Stretch and one...

Twenty-five seniors in the Wayne-Westland Community Schools' educational program for senior citizens can attest to it. Exercise can be fun. The Thursday sessions that are helping them keep in shape are held at John Glenn High School from 3 to 5 p.m. Class participants ride bicycles, practice the "Hula", do the "Hustle" and enjoy many exercises specifically designed for the aging adult.

And to augment the program is "light-caloried" snacks of orange juice, celery stuffed with cheese and fruit. Popularity of the class is evidenced in its participation which has climbed from 12 to 25 in four months. Gloria Kovatis and Denise Nadolski are the instructors. Classes are free to all seniors.

The Nankin Transit Commission (NTC) serves persons 55 years and older, as well as handicapped persons, in Wayne, Westland, Garden City, Inkster and Canton Township. Of those, Canton is the only community that is not actually a member of the NTC. That township contracts with NTC for bus service.

For 25 cents, those seniors or handicapped persons can get a ride to any location within the five-community area. Another quarter will bring them home.

The NTC uses a fleet of 11 buses, according to Carol Winkler, deputy supervisor of the NTC operation. Charles Hunter is supervisor.

Two of the buses are equipped with lift devices to be used for persons in wheelchairs or with mobility difficulty.

Rides are provided Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

To make a reservation for a ride to a medical appointment, seniors may call as far as two days in advance. Requests for transportation of groups also should be made two days in advance. Other appointments, such as shopping trips, visits and such, may be made by seniors only one day in advance, Mrs. Winkler said. This is to insure that doctor visits are given first priority in making out the schedule.

Because there are only two buses with hydraulic lift devices for the handicapped, those persons also may call two days in advance for a reservation.

Of course, an attempt is made to schedule in last minute callers, Mrs. Winkler said. She urges seniors in that case to call in early in the day.

However, with the service providing between 5,000 and 6,000 rides per month, the schedule is always full and busy, Mrs. Winkler added.

The dial-a-ride telephone number is 729-2710.

So far, the NTC member cities enjoying the transportation service have not had to contribute money to the program, although the cities have at times been asked to loan NTC money to take care of cash flow problems. This is because SEMTA takes care of much of the cost by providing buses, and the employees working there are paid through CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) funds.

However, it is expected that eventually the cities will have to begin sharing the cost of providing the service.

Seniors generally have been delighted with the program since it began in September of 1975. Transportation has been found to be one of the biggest problems of older citizens. The dial-a-ride program gives many seniors who do not drive or own a car the much needed mobility both for necessary doctor appointments, and leisure activities.

After nearly three years of wear and tear on the buses in the fleet, many are beginning to "wear out," Mrs. Winkler said. She noted that it seems that every day at least one or two are "down" for repairs.

She said they hope that SEMTA will provide some replacement buses this fall.

The decision making body for the Nankin Transit Commission is the board made up of representatives from each of the participating communities. Glenn Sahw of Westland is chairman.

FNS listens

Need someone to talk to? Having a problem? Need some help?

If you are 60 years of age or older and living in Romulus, Belleville and the townships of Sumpter, Van Buren and Huron, help is just around the corner at Family and Neighborhood Services.

Lois Ellwart, FNS' senior citizen mental health coordinator, can help older residents who have a personal problem.

There is no charge for the service, and seniors who find it difficult to visit the FNS Office at 37064 Goddard Road, Romulus, can reach her at 941-9590 to arrange for home visits.

Funded by Title III money, seniors who live outside the service area also can call. FNS staffers will put them in contact with similar service agencies in their area.

Seniors turn out for ed program in W-W district

Enrollment of senior citizens in the classes offered by Wayne-Westland Community Schools District Continuing Education Program is growing at such a rate that many can hardly wait for the completion of the new educational service center.

Members of the Wayne-Westland Community Schools Senior Citizens Club have for seven years taken advantage of the educational opportunities set up by club organizers.

Today with a membership of more than 450 seniors, plans for the program not only include its continuance, but also making room for more to join and more services to be offered.

Polly Malaney, program supervisor, described the classes as "leisure time courses".

Malaney said that the courses are not intended to cover academic subjects like history and politics. Instead, the classes are set up to fill free time with lighter educational experiences.

The program supervisor did add however, that seniors in the club are welcome to enroll in academic courses offered by either the district's adult education program or at many of the nearby community colleges. She said that often these courses are taught free to the senior citizen.

Also offered at no charge and many times with the supplies furnished by the district, are the leisure classes which are available four days each week.

According to Malaney, Monday afternoons are set aside for bridge and progressive pinochle.

In addition, seniors may join the decorations and crafts course in which the students spend their Monday afternoons making party favors, centerpieces and other decorations for the club's special events.

(One special event lined up for the end of this month is the Golden Awards Banquet. Scheduled for April 29 is the presentation of eight citizenship and service awards going to selected club members. Members celebrating their 50th wedding anniversaries will be given awards too.)

Tuesdays and Wednesdays are reserved for club meetings. Although no classes are offered on these days, members may play bingo in the afternoon.

Malaney said that two days were set aside for club meetings because the club had grown too large to accommodate all of its members on just one day.

The meetings are held at 3 p. m. in the cafeteria at John Glenn High School on Marquette Road.

Courses planned for Thursday afternoons include personalized car care, music appreciation, photojournalism and physical education.

Malaney explained that the car care class is a simplified instruction course designed to acquaint seniors with the basics of auto maintenance.

She said that the course is valuable to the program because the club has many widowed members who can benefit from such instruction.

In addition, the program supervisor said that the physical education exercise classes are also beneficial to the seniors and are "very popular" with club members. She explained that the exercise instructor has studied at many seminars and has organized a program which is specifically designed for the well-being of the older generation.

On Fridays the list of scheduled courses includes wood working, square dancing, crafts and the pinochle club.

Malaney said that the crafts class offered at the end of the week differs from the decorations and crafts course. She said that regular crafts are taught on Fridays such as macrame, rug hooking, dry flower arranging and similar artistic skills.

Only one activity is planned for Saturday—swimming from 1 p. m. until 2 p. m.

Next year, Malaney hopes to introduce a drama class into the program schedule.

And aside from drama, additional plans are sort of waiting in the wings until the new center is built.

According to Malaney, ground for the new project has been broken, but the date for its completion has not been set.

County expands services

By MAUREEN BEATTY

The Wayne County Office on Aging is continually expanding its services to meet the needs of our area senior citizens.

The nutrition program, established in 1973 and now serving in 48 different sites throughout the county, is probably the most widely known service of the many offered. This program provides hot lunches Monday through Friday to anyone 60 years of age or older. There is no mandatory fee, but a 50-cent donation is suggested. Nutrition education, guest speakers on subjects of interest to seniors, and periodic blood pressure checkups also are offered at the nutrition sites.

Following is a list of nutrition sites located in Associated Newspapers distribution area:

- Twin Towers, 2000 Inkster Road, Inkster, phone 561-2600;
- Chateau Cherry Hill, 213 Henry Ruff Road, Inkster;
- Wayne Towers, 35200 Sims, Wayne;
- "J" Building, Wayne County General Hospital — Eloise, phone 326-9600;
- Kirk of Our Saviour Church, 36660 Cherry Hill, Westland, phone 728-1088;

- Huron School, 19132 Huron River Drive, New Boston, 753-4043;
- St. Aloysius Catholic Church, 11280 Ozga, Romulus;
- Sumpter Senior Center, 24560 Sumpter

Road, Sumpter Township, phone 461-2220;

—Canton Township Recreation Center, 44237 Michigan Avenue, Canton phone 397-2777; and —Van Buren Township Hall, 46425 Tyler, Belleville.

For further information on these sites, or for a list of sites located elsewhere in the out-Wayne County area, call 224-0950, or Information and Referral at 326-9400.

MINOR HOME REPAIR: This program was established to assist the senior citizen in maintaining his or her own home. Repairs such as leaky faucets, broken steps and electric switches are made at no cost to the senior. Call 326-2411.

SENIOR CITIZEN MULTIPURPOSE CENTER: Located in J Building, this facility provides a wide range of health, social, recreational and education activities for all county senior citizens. There are no fees for these services. Phone 326-9228.

SENIOR DAY CENTER: Located in the multipurpose center, this Adult Day Care program provides a home-away-from-home atmosphere for the frail elderly as an alternative to nursing home care. The center is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. There are no fees. For further information call 326-9228.

MEDICAL LOAN CLOSET: Also located in the multi-purpose center, this program loans a variety of medical equipment to

GARDENS AND GREENHOUSE: A very popular program since its inception in 1975. Located in Westland, there are 200 garden plots and an adjoining year-round greenhouse available at no charge to county senior citizens. In the past, Frank's Nursery Sales Inc. has donated a variety of seeds for use at the gardens. The harvest of each plot is for the seniors to do with as they wish. Phone 326-9400.

DETROIT - WAYNE COUNTY SENIOR CITIZENS INFORMATION AND REFERRAL: In cooperation with the Detroit Senior Citizens' Department, information is given and follow-up referrals are made to meet a variety of elderly needs. No fees. Call the I&R number, 963-8800, where a bi-lingual staff is located, or J Building at 326-9400.

SEMTA TRANSPORTATION: Two 12 passenger vans, one with wheelchair capability, are provided to various senior citizen groups for special day-long outings. No fees.

SPEAKER'S BUREAU: Speakers are provided to groups to give information and answer questions regarding programs and services which now are available. No fees.

SENIOR EMPLOYMENT PROGRAM: Job opportunities, both full and part time, are provided to low-income senior citizens. Work sites are located throughout the county. No fees. Call 224-0957.

Golden date feted

May is Senior Citizen Month throughout the country, and to observe it, the Westland Department on Aging will be inaugurating two new programs.

New to the list of social event sponsored by the department will be the Golden Wedding Ball, slated for May 12. Seniors who will be celebrating, or have celebrated, their golden wedding anniversary will be honored.

According to the department's assistant director, Sylvia Kozorosky, the ball will honor jubilarians whose wedding dates fall between May 1, 1977 and Dec. 31, 1978.

The honored couples also will be eligible for the door prize of two engraved gold watches, donated by Leo's Gift Shop in Wayne. However, both husband and wife must attend to be eligible.

The cost of the ball will be $3 per person. It will be held from 12 noon to 4:15 p.m. May 12 at the Wayne-Ford Civic League Hall, 1661 N. Wayne Road, Westland.

Golden jubilarians should contact the department on aging for further information on the ball. The department can be reached at 722-7628 or 722-7632.

Reservations must be made by May 5. The ball is open to any senior living in the City of Westland, Mrs. Kozorosky emphasized.

Also being introduced that same day will be the opening of the Senior Citizen Hall of Fame to recognize those seniors who have contributed to the betterment of the lives of other seniors in the Westland community.

In conjunction with that the city will revive its Senior Citizen of the Year award, with the recipient to be named to the hall of fame.

The contest is open to any Westland senior citizen, however, Mrs. Kozorosky emphasized that a nominee may not be employed by an agency and that his or her time and effort must have been donated.

Applications for the Senior of the Year can be picked up at the Friendship Center, 37095 Marquette, Westland. The deadline for submitting the resumes will be May 1.

Chiropractic Care Gets Results For Your Entire Family

NO "OSCAR" FOR GEORGE KENNEDY WITHOUT CHIROPRACTIC CARE

Chiropractic has helped many stars to maintain good health

Chiropractic has helped many stars to maintain good health in spite of strenuous, hectic schedules but in George Kennedy's case, chiropractic was the means which made possible his career as a topflight actor. Without adjustments, Kennedy would never have been able to participate in the 104 screen fights which led eventually to an Oscar for his portrayal in "Cool Hand Luke" and later to his own prime-time television series, "Sarge" and "The Blue Knight."

Kennedy, six-foot-four, 230 pounds and blond, entered the Army in 1942 at the age of 17. It was shortly afterwards that he suffered a back injury from a grenade. He was not incapacitated permanently but after sixteen years of service, he was told he must have an operation for spinal fusion or accept a medical discharge. Kennedy chose the latter.

His back injury continued to curtail his activities until he discovered chiropractic. Adjustments gave him a new lease on life. After chiropractic assistance whenever a producer requested a big man for the hero to beat up, George Kennedy was called in as the patsy...or as in "Cool Hand Luke", he made pulp of the other actor. Either way, it was a fight.

During filming, Kennedy's chiropractor had to adjust his back before he could continue with the next day's filming.

Thanks to chiropractic, "the Big K" had to leave a picture only once when shooting on location with no chiropractor available.

With the advent of "Sarge", George Kennedy's scenes before the camera no longer required the familiar brawls but making a series of this calibre meant a twelve-hour day of demanding activity. Chiropractic kept its star in excellent physical condition.

There can be no doubt, George Kennedy will be a big name in show business for years to come, with the help of his chiropractor, of course — a statement with which he would be the first to agree.

ROBERT GOULET SAYS:

FIGHT STRESS with CHIROPRACTIC

One of chiropractic's great advocates is singing star Robert Goulet, who knows the problems the nervous system encounters when it is under stress. Goulet, who is always in demand on the entertainment scene, started taking chiropractic adjustments as a preventive measure, but soon found that stress and strain were handled better if the nerve energy was transmitting properly.

"I believe in it," he says. "Whenever I start to catch a cold, I get an adjustment and I feel better right away."

BURT REYNOLDS RECEIVES CHIROPRACTIC CARE REGULARLY

Burt Reynolds became a solid believer in chiropractic health care when he was a stunt man. He has since become a star, in roles as varied as the light Smokey and the Bandit and the dramatic Deliverance. "There is so little difference in people who are obscure and people who are famous," Burt realizes.

But he agrees that famous bodies and obscure bodies all can benefit immensely by chiropractic. Wherever he is, he seeks the services of a chiropractor, believing that to be an excellent way to stay healthy in spite of long shooting schedules and rugged assignments.

Westland beefs up aging service program

By SUE McDONALD
ANP News Editor

The telephone rings, and a senior citizen answers. After a brief conversation, the call ends. It is the first of an estimated 91 telephone calls that will be made today through the Westland Department on Aging's Telecare Program...and is one of six programs designed to meet the "creature comforts" of the city's senior citizens.

According to the assistant director of the city's newest department, Sylvia Kozorosky, some 75 senior citizens are being contacted daily through the telephone reassurance program.

Geared to the homebound, isolated and lonely senior, the program consists of a daily call to an older person's home at an appointed time to determine whether he or she is all right and whether he or she has any specific needs.

Operated by the Wayne County Office on Aging in cooperation with the department and the city's Commission on Aging, Mrs. Kozorosky said that demand for the service has increased to the point that a second operator has been hired to help with the daily calls.

With recalls and referrals — the telephone reassurer contacts the appropriate source in the community to see that the senior's situation is taken care of — Telecare is handling 91 calls a day. And according to Mrs. Kozorosky, it will be getting even bigger. The program is expected to be service 150 seniors during 1978-79.

The Telecare numbers are 722-7660 or 722-7661.

Coupled with Telecare are several other programs that are helping to meet the seniors' physical needs.

Among those programs is Out Reach, a needs assessment survey being funded through the Comprehensive Employment Training Act. To date some 7,900 questionnaires have been mailed to senior citizens in the community, and according to Mrs. Kozorosky, response has been averaging 100 per day.

Mrs. Kozorosky explained that the survey will show the level of services that the city actually is providing senior citizens as well as find out what needs are still unmet.

With 1,218 questionnaires returned to the department, the top priorities among seniors has been minor home repairs, lawn care and snow removal.

Mrs. Kozorosky added that many seniors responding to the survey "can't believe they are being called and that the city is showing such a quick response to their needs after they turned in the questionnaires."

"We're moving on the problems (reported in the surveys) as soon as possible," she said. "And we are paying close attention to the answers because this will guide the department in meeting the real needs of the older American."

Mrs. Kozorosky added that the survey is entering its second phase in which follow-up calls will be made to seniors who have yet to answer the questionnaire.

Another program that is creating a "good environment between the older person and the young adult" is Home Chores.

Operated by the National Honor Society's Service Group at Wayne Memorial High School, students are helping seniors with light housekeeping chores. Twenty-two students are involved in the program, and while only 35 seniors have called for the service from 75 to 100 are expected to be helped during 1978-79.

A volunteer program, the students clean windows, shovel snow from walks, cut lawns, pick up mail and shop for necessary items only.

The only stipulation for the service is that it is for the senior who can't do his or her own work or needs help or who can't afford to pay, Mrs. Kozorosky said.

The department's information and referral program provides seniors with current information about available community services and directs them to the appropriate agency or resources.

The program has grown. In 1975 only 150 seniors were helped, while last year the number increased to 225. This year the department expects to assist about 300 seniors.

"We're all trained to guide them (seniors) to professionals in the fields of their needs," Mrs. Kozorosky explained. "We put them in contact with the providers."

A bi-monthly newsletter from the department also helps to disseminate information, reaching more than 2,500 persons and 3,500 by mail.

A calendar keeps seniors abreast with the monthly lineup of educational classes, social events, field trips and other special activities.

And bulletin boards in the department's Senior Friendship Center contain up-to-date information on statewide happenings.

In explaining the classes offered through the department, Mrs. Kozorosky said: "The classes we have are taught by seniors who have the talent, skills and ability to teach. They give the seniors something to look forward to."

In the works for the department is the Friendly Visitors, who will visit the isolated or homebound senior for "increased social contact with the community."

Mrs. Kozorosky hopes to recruit retired nurses and nurses aides for the program. They will meet with the seniors on a monthly basis to provide "continuing companionship ... to one lonely homebound person."

Residents who feel qualified for the program are urged to contact Mrs. Kozorosky at 722-7628 or 722-7632. Between 25 and 50 volunteers are needed for the program.

The department also has teamed up with the Wayne-Westland Community Schools' Continuing Education Department in offering a medical loan closet that provides wheelchairs, canes, crutches, beds and other medical equipment for needy seniors.

Mrs. Kozorosky said the program is very successful and "very much in need of other equipment."

A small deposit is required to obtain the equipment, however, the fee is rebated to the senior after the equipment is returned.

Considering that the department on aging is less than a year old, it programs show that the city is making gains in meeting the needs of its senior citizens.

Residents find Lexington staff is dedicated

The decision to place a loved one in a residential home can be a heart-wrenching one. Fears about lack of care and spending days on end staring at a drab walls crop up.

But the experience need not be a tragic one, if approached intelligently and with carefulness.

Here are some experiences that proved fruitful for Grace E. Tracy and Mrs. Kenneth E. Way.

Our mother, Lillian Dowell, spent the last 2½ years of her life as a resident at Lexington House West.

When she died recently, two weeks before her 94th birthday, we all felt that we had served her best interests, as well as out our own, by placing her at Lexington House.

The staff seems to have a special talent and dedication...

We reluctantly admit that our mother was more content at Lexington House than with any of her children in their home.

Grace E. Tracy

express the sincere appreciation of myself, my mother, Mrs. Ula Netter, and our family for the extensive care you gave our uncle, Thomas VanDine, from May 1976 until last month when he passed away.

Our expectations of a home were far surpassed by the diligent and expedient care you gave in seeing to Uncle Tom's needs.

But more important to us than the care given to his physical needs was the sincere concern and desire on your part to care for the man himself and to make his life more than an institutionalized existence.

None of which to grow old and incapable of caring for ourselves, nor do we want to reach a point in life where we must leave our families because they can no longer see to our needs. However, knowing that there are people who are devoted as you and your staff are to helping to live out as pleasant and comfortable a life as possible makes the future less formidable and the present more enjoyable.

I would like to take this opportunity to

Mrs. Kenneth E. Way

ICSPE

No program like it

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

"No program around like it" is the way the director of senior citizen activities in Inkster describes the multitude of services available to them through joint city and federal funding.

Heading the Inkster Comprehensive Services Program for the Elderly (ICSPE) is Margery Frazier, who since 1972, has seen to it that more than 2,500 community seniors take advantage of the eight-part service package open to them.

Actually, a total of 2,660 Inkster senior citizens are registered today in what started out six years ago as one of only three such pilot programs in the nation.

The ICSPE is sponsored by the Inkster Housing Commission and the Inkster Commission on Aging. The latter group is a nine-member body appointed by the mayor, with the main office located in Twin Towers. Satellite offices also are open at Thompson Towers, Chateau Cherry Hill and Lehigh Drop-in Center.

Many, but not all, of Inkster's senior citizens are members of the six organizations in the city — Inkster Club, Friendship Club, Thompson Towers Club, Chateau Cherry Hill Carol Club, Cherry Hill Club and the OK Card Club.

According to Miss Frazier, last year the city provided $50,000 and the federal government $104,000 to operate the ICSPE for the services to Inkster citizens 60 years of age and older.

Services available under the eight-part program are:

(1) Outreach which finds isolated seniors through home visits and gets them actively involved in community affairs.

(2) Information and referral provides information on such benefits as Social Security and food stamps and also on property taxes.

(3) Community health provides assistance with health insurance, pickup of prescriptions and clinics for such ailments as flu and diabetes.

(4) Home services sends personnel to homebound seniors for cooking of meals, doing of laundry, performing ironing and cleaning and the moving of furniture. This helps to ensure that senior can stay home and not be sent to nursing homes or hospitals.

(5) Transportation, two cars provide a way for seniors to make medical trips and a total of five buses are used to make scheduled runs to shopping centers around the metropolitan area.

(6) Socialization programs which offer instruction in arts and crafts, ceramics, various workshops, bowling and bell choir.

(7) Two nutrition sites where hot lunch programs are available at Twin Towers and Chateau Cherry Hill under the out-county nutrition program.

(8) RSVP (Retired Services Volunteer Program) places some 250 seniors in various agencies such as the courts, schools, day care centers and the jail annex for Wayne County for volunteer work.

Miss Frazier said the idea behind ICSPE is to provide supportive services within the seniors' own community so they will not be sent to hospitals or nursing homes and thus enable them to enjoy their own lifestyles.

She said seniors wishing further information on services available to them in Inkster can call 274-9015.

Services expand

Presently housed in John Glenn High School, the club expects to be operating in its own center within two years.

The new senior citizen educational center will be located near the high school and directly across the street from the new senior apartment house currently under construction.

Although a name has not been chosen yet for the $4.5 million complex, Malaney said that she has started ordering some equipment including a kiln for a proposed ceramics class.

Malaney said that depending upon how the district decides to handle the center's naming, she may organize a contest whereby the club members would submit possible titles for the building.

In addition to the senior center, three other centers are planned for the new complex.

Malaney said that the $12 million price tag on the entire development will include building costs for a vocational education program, a child care center and a Respite Center.

According to Malaney, the Respite mentally retarded. She said that there is only one other center like it in the U. S. and that one is in California.

Malaney explained that the unique center will be available for temporarily "babysitting" the mentally impaired, up to 17 years old, who normally live at home.

Because the new center will be near the school, program administrators have decided to cut some financial corners by sharing some of the facilities at John Glenn with the senior's program.

Still, future plans for the program include whirlpool baths, exercise rooms, a library lounge, talking books for the blind, and additional classes like sewing and needlepoint.

Two other proposals being considered for implementation at the opening of the center are a nutritional program which will provide at least one daily meal for the seniors, and a grandparent program which will have seniors working with the child care center.

Only seven-years-old and already demanding a home of its own, the W-W Community Schools Senior Citizens' Club is as Malaney put it, "moving right along".

Illness need not spoil 'golden years'

Most people look forward to that time of life when they can retire from work and "take it easy", substituting favorite forms of recreation for the nine-to-five work day.

And thus the daily schedule of a retired person becomes a very personal matter without too many demands from the outside.

Most of us covet pleasant thoughts about retirement, but don't like the idea of getting older in the process. We're apprehensive about the various ailments that accompany the aging process, and to many, it seems as though those "golden years" are tarnished with illness and despair.

But it doesn't have to be that way. Problems of health can be avoided by maintaining several good habits prior to and during retirement. These include proper and regular rest, moderate exercise, and sound and reasonable diet, a positive outlook on life and a program of chiropractic care.

The senior citizen can easily say that nothing much can be done for those aches and pains, but pain is not synonymous with old age. It is simply a symptom of an illness. Too many people tend to ignore it since "it'll go away in a little while". However, pain is nature's way of warning young and old alike that something isn't quite right.

A young person has the advantage of greater resilience, but for the older person, it takes longer to regain health.

So why allow yourself to become prone to these ailments usually associated with age? Why walk with a stiff gait? Why have problems with digestion or elimination? Why have stiff joints?

Through chiropractic care, a lot of attention is given to the spine. The spinal column is a fundamental element for the physical integrity of the whole person. Because it is through the spine that nerve impulses pass from the brain to virtually every part of the body, it is easy to understand why it is important to maintain the spine.

A chiropractic doctor carefully assesses the condition of every patient. He uses a case history, which is reviewed for all past ailments. The doctor will consult with the patient and again review the patient's background and present complaints.

Various procedures are used to substantiate these initial findings, and through a series of physical checks, the chiropractic doctor can determine the extent to which the ailment has progressed.

X-rays may be used and are a valuable tool for the chiropractic's evaluation process. However, X-rays are taken only if deemed necessary.

Once the problem is determined, the doctor will begin a series of chiropractic adjustments. For the older person, the adjustments are simple and effective in most instances. Through instrumentation, the doctor follows the progress of the patient.

It is important to remember that in many instances the retiree may have longstanding physical problems. The degenerative processes may take longer a period of time to correct, so the doctor and patient must work together in a program designed by the former.

Because chiropractic is a natural healing art, drugs are not prescribed. Consequently, the chiropractic patient does not have the problems that are associated with some forms of medication, which on their own tend to become a part of the problem rather than its solution.

Plan to see your chiropractic doctor at regular intervals, whether for a routine maintenance or for specific problems. He will take all the time necessary to work with you, discuss your problem and set up a program of care which will help you enjoy life to the fullest.

Because it is a natural form of health, chiropractic is in deed a valuable resource to everyone looking forward to the golden years of life with good health.

Symptoms: Pain started in feet, later advanced to knees and lower back area; diagnosed as multiple sclerosis. Patient finally lost sense of balance. Trip-hammer pain in back, severe constipation, numbness of fingers. Anxiety neurosis which affected ability to sleep.

Outcome: Pain and anxiety relieved after five months' adjustments; patient became pregnant and is "doing very well".

DIARRHEA FOR 15 DAYS . . . Seeks Chiropractic Help!

For 15 days I had diarrhea, non-stop, with pains all over my body, pills and shots by other doctors failed to bring results. I hurt so bad, I decided to try Chiropractic.

Well I didn't go more than 2 or 3 times to Dr. Ray Elwart at the Romulus Chiropractic Clinic and my diarrhea stopped. Of course, I felt much better and I began to get my weight back.

Now that I have enjoyed the benefits of Chiropractic, I feel wonderful.

I would definitely recommend Chiropractic and the Romulus Chiropractic Clinic to others who are sick, suffering, or in pain.

Signed, Rev. William Riggs Belleville

WYANDOTTE MAN CONFINED TO BED

. . . Seeks Chiropractic Help!

Before I started coming to the Romulus Chiropractic Clinic I couldn't get out of bed, I had an upset stomach and couldn't catch my breath.

After the very first adjustment I noticed an improvement in my health. Since going to Dr. Atkinson I can stand straight, my back no longer hurts as much, and I can get out of bed without any help.

Yes, I would recommend Chiropractic to others.

THYROID

For Two years I had been taking thyroid pills - my doctor told me I would have to take them for the rest of my life. Well, my daughter was coming to the Romulus Chiropractic Clinic and she thought that it would be good for me to come in, as she had gotten such good results.

Dr. Dan Elwart told me that the cause of my problem was in the nervous system and after a few short months of Chiropractic care - I returned to the hospital for a thyroid test. And when I received the results they told me that my thyroid problem was gone and I wouldn't have to take any more pills!

I thank God and my Chiropractor for the wonderful results I have received. I would recommend Chiropractic care to others.

BACK PAINS & HEADACHES

Back pains and headaches were interfering with my daily routine, so I sought the help of Dr. Atkinson at the Romulus Chiropractic Clinic. Within 2 weeks I noticed a definite change in my health, not just physically but mentally also.

I would recommend Chiropractic to others.

Signed, Clarence Laverly Jr.
